The Tamarack

North Central High School
June, 1929

NORTH CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL, SPOKANE, WASHINGTON

LOWELL C. BRADFORD

to whom this Tamarack is dedicated by the Class of June, 1929, for his friendship, kindly sympathy and wise leadership, given us during our four years in North Central.

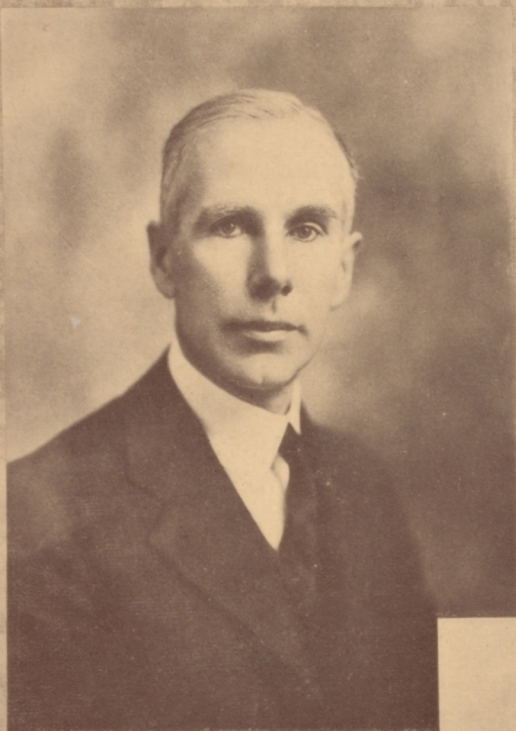

Mr. Bradford's success is outstanding.

To be valued by your associates for what you do and how you do it; to be counted among the builders in a community—builders of enduring things, such as good character and trained abilities; to fashion the fine texture of education and moral fiber into the very beings of young people; to be loved and respected by thousands in the school and in the city where one works and lives; so to be and to do spells success—Mr. Bradford's kind—than which there is no higher.

Class Will

The class of '29, you see,
Has made its will in poetry.

And starting out with quite a flair,
We leave Mark Cook, "Red" Wyatt's hair!

We thought Martha Pearl Jones could possibly use
Roy Benson's sarcasm to cure her of blues.

Charlotte Harding's and Hazel Snyder's tresses long,
The girls have decided to take along.

We heard that Howard Clark's sense of humor
Was left to Bill Rodgers. (This is rumor.)

The Latin ability of Bob Russell
We leave to those who like to hustle.

Mary Walsh's ease at dance
Goes to Elaine O'Donnell who also can prance.

In leaving someone to the Senior B's,
We felt Max Weber surely would please.

The way Jack DeMerchant tickles the keys
We leave to Fran Heaton who plays with ease.

Now wouldn't this next gift get your goat?
Katherine Millar leaves you all her old coat.

Stan Colburn, "The Lady Known as Lou,"
from Bob Cory
Gets acting ability and glory.

Alice Perkins, dear child, is receiving a giftie,
Johnny Blanchard's arguing manner, so nifty.

Sid Collin's scholastic standing—by heck
To N. C.'s permanent fixture—Dan Dech.

Pearl Bollons, "Ozzie" Browst, and Opal
Schrock
Leave all of their "It" to the Freshie B flock.

Miss Betty Gibb may now take her bow,
She's getting Les Hildenbrandt's fiddle, and how!

Lucia Whitmarsh's dates—whoopee and wild
Go to that sweet Janet McDonald child.

Our president's (Jerry's) way of throwing paste
We leave to Frances Jones and Bertha George in haste.

Miss Evans is getting poor Arthur Dehuff.
(We're saying, Miss Evans, you're getting enough.)

Lily Nelson and Ruth Walker "shoot baskets" with ease
So there's a couple of fellows we're going to please.

Horton Herman and Rollie Johnson, you know,
Are getting the girls' ability to throw.

To Bernice Carpenter, we leave, with our joys
All of Marge Misselhorn's boldness with boys.

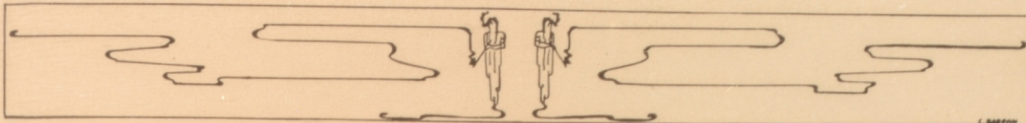

Clarence Smith has such a sweet, ingratiating smile

He's leaving it in Clarence Talbot's keeping for a while.

We leave old N. C., triumph, victory, and yet—
Though we leave our best wishes, we leave with regret.

Class History

In the distance was heard an uproar. Before the stately doors of old North Central in a cloud of dust an old Ford crashed to the curbing and out of it scrambled 2 little green freshies. Puffing behind the bunch in his own private cloud of dust came James Finlay Hocking, dragging his little lunch pail behind him.

With the encouragement of this last member the group approached the foreboding door and bravely entered. At the door they were handed the closest rival to a chinese puzzle. Who before this moment had ever heard of a "zero hour," certainly not one of these freshies; and it was with the appearance of mute resignation that they set out to look for the auditorium.

The day ended with no casualties, but the newcomers had innumerable startling experiences. The ancient, "North Central wise chiefs" failed to recognize the unusual ability that was soon to crop out in the young braves. The time passed rapidly for these freshmen and before they realized it, it was time to begin worrying about final grades.

A new epoch began with our descent from the "shelf" to the last row on the main floor of the auditorium (although it has been rumored that a few were progressive enough to reach the senior section before the middle of the sophomore year.) Our bright and sunny faces inspired John A. Shaw to inaugurate the playfield project. Many of the enthusiastic young sophomores blistered their hands to aid in the development of the Happy Hunting Ground which was ready to use before we became juniors.

North Central clubs were now aided by the addition of some of our class to their membership, and the band passed its 100 mark with the annexing of some of our talented musicians.

We next blossomed out in red sweaters whose color augmented the fever of good spirit around North Central. (This new fad also helped to build a flourishing business for the O Kaye knitting mills, showing that our influence was even then spreading into wider fields.)

Since we've been large enough to participate in interscholastic contests we have been very successful in upholding the reputation that was our heritage.

At the beginning of our junior year we began to realize the importance of our responsibility in this institution of learning. The operetta was a "howling" success because of the support of our charming voices.

Near the end of our junior year we learned that we were to lose our vice principal who had helped us over countless snags in our progress and it remained for us to learn who would take his place in our senior year. At the beginning of our last year. Mr. Hawes stepped forward to assume the responsibility of this office, and with his cooperation we continued to advance, always with the good of North Central in mind.

With the beginning of our senior B semester came the definite organization of the class. Milton Wyatt was selected to lead us through this portion of our progress. Max Weber, Dorothy Barton, Oscar Browst, and Jerry Kopet were selected to assist him. Les Clason was chosen as yell leader and under his guidance we succeeded in yelling our way to the front in convocations. Miss Greenberg with her energetic enthusiasm helped more than she will ever know as our faculty adviser.

We now approached the most exciting epoch of our entire career, the senior A semester. With Jerry Kopet as leader and with Charlotte Harding, Dorothy Stewart, and Robert Russell as assistants we set out to conquer all foes, including the present senior B's. Mr. Ramsey now took the responsibility of guiding us to a successful close of our high school career, and as he was familiar with the ground to be covered, he proved to be an excellent guide.

Our senior dramatics class had two outstanding successes, Penrod and Daddy Long-Legs, the class play.

After class day to recall the pleasures of all our school life we are ready to turn the school over to the coming senior A's. By this time our old Ford had been used as filler for the playfield, and it is with a newer and higher powered car that we set out to conquer life. Although we are perfectly willing to face future with what it may hold in store for us, we all have a feeling of sadness when we have to leave all the friends and associations that we have had at North Central.

The Passing Show

Jan. 28—New semester begins. Boy, look at the frosh! 121 of them. Al Dibblee and Maurice Persons are new School and Personal Service department heads.

Jan. 31—The Delts will handle the News campaign this year. There are a few new teachers this time.

Feb. 2—Ground hog day. Will he or will he not? Let's hope he won't. That reminds us. Don't act like the ground hog.

Feb. 6—Tryouts for the Northwest High School orchestra today. Special public speaking class organized by Miss Jones.

Feb. 7—Boy, those Newsies are swellheaded. They won a basketball game from the print shop.

Feb. 11—KFIO goes on air for first time this year. Dissatisfied "studes" are pulling the same old ones to get their programs changed.

Feb. 12—Lincoln's Birthday. Katherine Millar is president of the Associated Student councils.

Feb. 14—Room 220 first 100% room in News subscriptions. Wallace Hunt gets leather bound Tamarack. Two frosh enrolled in band.

Feb. 15—S. A. R. Oratorical contest today. Mr. Chandler is in charge. Charles Campbell wins by unanimous vote. His subject was "John Marshall, Expounder of the Constitution." N. C. donates $1000 to Community Chest.

Feb. 19—Another girl is editor in chief of the Tamarack. Mary Walsh was selected.

Feb. 21—210 candidates for graduation. Not the largest class, but of course, it's the best. Some Newshound with a nose for statistics found that there are 46 Johns in school. James Hocking is named athletic managere.

Feb. 22—Washington's Birthday. No school today.

Feb. 23—Two Newsies get up early and interview Judge Ben B. Lindsey at the Davenport hotel.

Feb. 26—106 in the band. News campaign only half over.

Feb. 28—The News received a letter from the publicity committee of the Community Chest thanking it for its work in aiding the drive.

March 1—First Tamarack meeting. "Rich Man, Poor Man" given in con today by Miss Jones' department.

March 4—The Tamarack will be of Indian design. Some new departments have been added.

March 7—Alumni con today. We heard Dad Green's boy tickle his African piano.

March 11—The boys overcame a tie with the relay in the second swimming meet with the girls today. As a result of several interviews, the League reporter learned that the standard dress is considered a success by prominent persons interested in North Central.

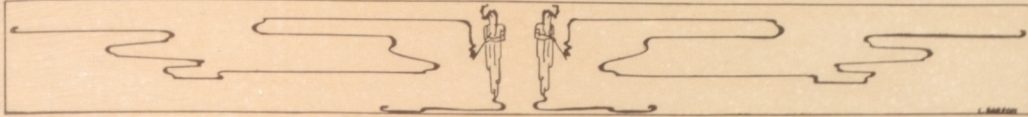

March 12—Our basketball team left for Seattle to battle for the championship again. We must have our bacon! 19 North Central students entered the Scholastic contest. Knute Rockne, Notre Dame's famous football coach, spoke to the boys in convocation.

March 13—P. H. Nygaard, mathematics teacher here, has written an article in this month's issue of the Mathematics Teacher on "Radio and Airplane Distances."

March 14—Reverend Van Winkle elected graduation speaker.

March 15—At 8 p. m. North Central's Math club entertained the Math club of Lewis and Clark at the home of Katherine Millar.

March 16—Today is Saturday! Two of our young News reporters went to jail! Sounds terrible but they were just after news.

March 18—Sure and 'tis too bad that we have so few Irish with us! There are only five out of the two thousand students in North Central who boast the name of Pat!

March 19—During the orchestra convocation, Leslie Hildenbrandt played a violin solo.

March 20—Hoop La! We have a beautiful big cup for taking second place in the state tournament!

March 21—"Most of the North Central students were born in the state of Washington." We now have one day exemption for standard dress.

March 22—The little orphans will have a spendid time at their Easter party tonight. Our committees have planned a good program. They have little easter eggs to serve later in the evening.

March 26—41 students on the senior honor roll! Not so bad! 16 of these are boys. Senior B's elected Roland Johnson president of their class today. Bertha George is vice president.

March 27—Room 220 is the first 100% class in Tamarack subscriptions. There must be a peppy group in that room.

March 28—The News office has a new clock at last. We're sure to leave on time now.

March 29—Oh, the Hi-Jinx. The program was keen. We about killed ourselves laughing at Ewing Gehrke.

April 1—The jokes! All kinds! Too many of them!——No, we fooled you; we didn't "bite" once!

April 2—Isn't it odd that nobody will admit that he is superstitious? A News reporter tried his best to get some one to 'fess up but it seems that North Centralites scorn such absurdities.

April 3—Now we know! What? ? ? ? ? That Dorothys are popular in North Central. There are forty Dorothys leading the school with twenty-nine Marys, twenty-nine Margarets and twenty-seven Ruths following in their footsteps.

April 4—The bright summer dresses are dazzling our eyes after the dark blues of the winter. Report cards today.

April 5—One of the best convocations we have ever had! There was every kind of doll in "The Doll Shop."

April 15—Back in the traces after vacation.

April 18—The Tamarack is dedicated to Lowell C. Bradford.

April 19—Band Concert.

April 23—Ahlquist debates today during the fourth period. Charles Campbell was the winner!

April 24—Mr. Rice presented a great cantata called "Paul Revere's Ride."

April 26—Everyone says the Vox Vodvil is going to be good. We'll have to go!

April 30—Lots of excitement! We play baseball with Hillyard tonight. Professor Ruby talked to us in convocation today.

May 1—Splash! They're off! Our girls must win the swimming meet with Lewis and Clark.

May 2—Strike three! Hope it's the Tigers instead of us! We must win this first baseball game!

May 3—Another con!

May 4—Senior Prom.

May 8—The girls are going to swim again tonight.

May 10—"Daddy Long-Legs" was presented tonight as the class play.

May 23—The senior tea was a pretty affair. Many of the students attended this last party.

June 1—News picnic. Did we have fun. This reminds us of a former News picnic. For particulars ask Mr. Rowlands.

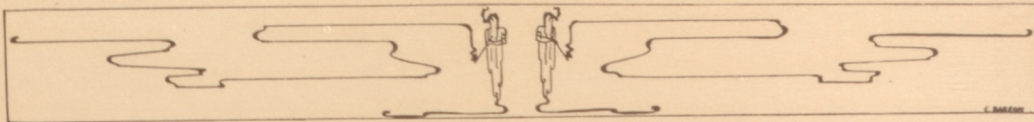

June 5—Class day! Doesn't it feel good to be a senior? Also today is kid day. Kids will be kids.

June 6—The Neophytes put out their edition of The News today.

June 9—At last! Baccalaureate services.

June 10—Graduation!

This is the end. Apparently we have come to the parting of the ways. It is with but one regret that we are forced to depart. We members of the News and Tamarack staffs did not get to see our pictures in the News. Also many of us, after 4 or more years have never found our names on the free chili list. "Sic volvere Parcus."

The regular work of the English department has been supplemented during the past year by two activities; participation in contests and preparation of an exhibit for the Inland Empire Educational association.

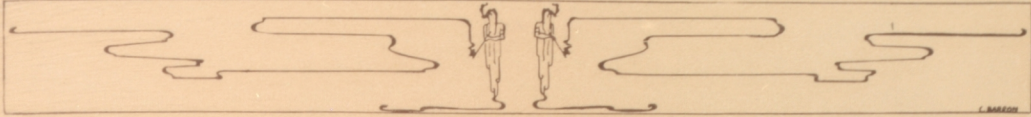

The contests to which manuscripts have been sent and the number of students competing are as follows: Les Miserables for which the prize was a four year scholarship in any university, six students; Scholastic magazine, offering $100, twenty students; Chemistry contest with a state prize of $20, six students; Current Literature, fifty dollar prize, twelve students; League of Nations offering a trip to Europe, two students; Flag contest also offering a trip abroad, twenty-five students. Interest in contests has been increasing among students and teachers. Such participation gives motivation and incentive to written work. Prizes are won often enough by the school to give us confidence in our ability.

The exhibit prepared by the department consisted mainly of the class projects in magazine study, in argumentation, in study of classics, in modern use of knowledge of plays. The projects were in the form of booklets or mounted posters. Most of the booklets were illustrated and attractively bound and titled. (These booklets were displayed on desk tops and in chalk trays.) An exhibit of examination questions of the new type; true-false, multiple choice, matching, were mounted for display. The North Central News was represented.

Twelve girls acted as hostesses and helped to give information to the visitors concerning North Central's English study.

The department has had a successful year under the direction of Miss Emma Edith Clarke. The other teachers are: Miss Bechtel, Mr. Bradford, Miss Campbell, Miss Cronk, Miss McKenna, Miss Parker, Miss Maltby, Miss McRae, Miss Weymouth, Mrs. Parish, Miss Powell, Miss Sammons, Miss Freakes, Mrs. Sayre, Miss Jones, Miss Ennis and Mr. Rowlands.

LANGUAGE DEPT.

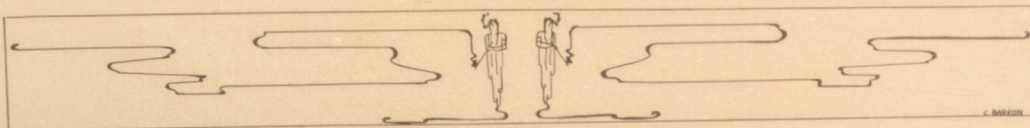

North Central offers many languages to the student who desires to broaden himself by the study of the vernacular of foreign countries. Latin, the basis of the English language, Spanish, German and French all contribute their share.

We are indeed fortunate in North Central in the fact that all of our modern language teachers have had some experience and training abroad.

With the remarkable development of the radio, the necessity and desirability of foreign languages are steadily increasing as this means of communication brings countries closer together than ever before.

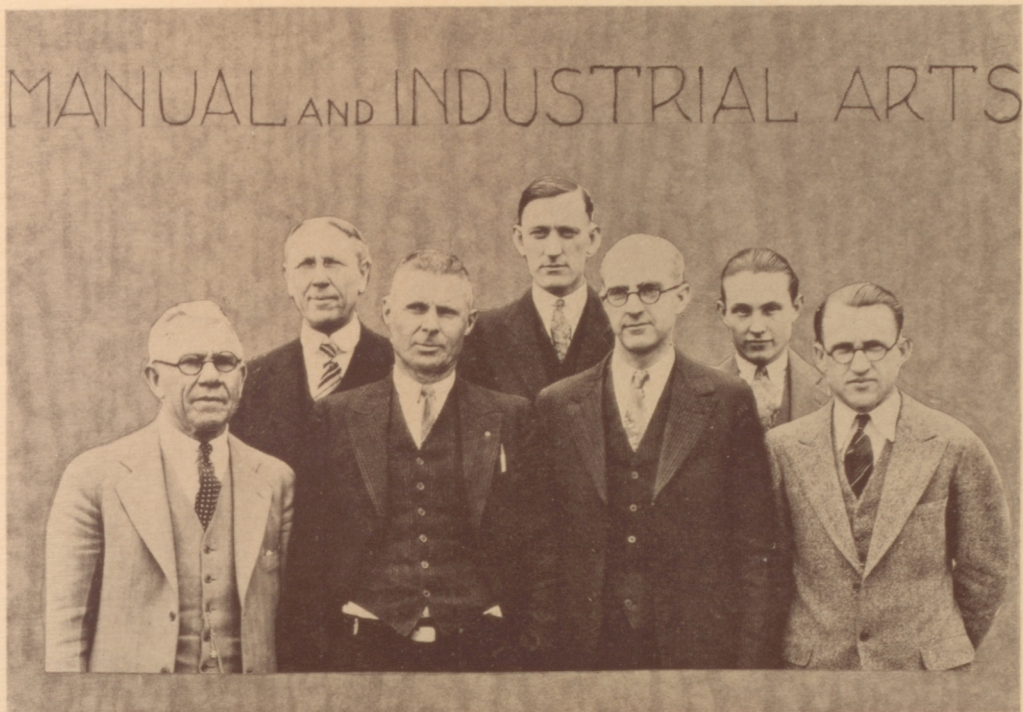

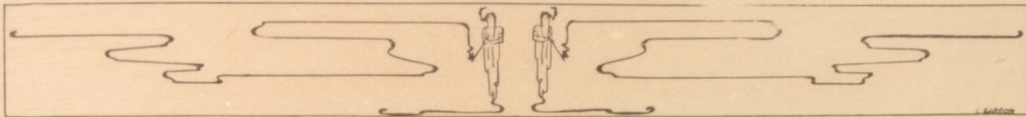

The foreign language teachers are: Miss Fehr, department head, Spanish, German; Miss Hague, French, Spanish; Miss Boehme, German; Miss Evans, Latin; Miss Herman, Spanish; Miss McDouall, Spanish; Miss McPhee, Spanish; Miss Prince, Latin.

The commercial department is that which deals with all subjects in the business line.

The banking for the entire school is taken care of by this department in the office training classes. Besides their regular work the commercial department is able to place all A and B students.

Mr. Strieter is head of the commercial department. The others are: Miss Brown, Miss Duffalo, Miss Anderson, Miss Paulson, Miss Wartinbee, Mrs. Robinson, Miss Johnson, and Miss Winkley.

The splendid print shop of which North Central now boasts was started eleven years ago with an enrollment of two students which enrollment was increased to eight at the end of the semester. The equipment at that time was valued at $2300.

This department now has an enrollment of fifty students and equipment valued at $29,000. L. H. Bates who is now in charge of the linotypes was one of the first year students. Mr. Green has been in charge during the entire time.

The staff consists of Ernest E. Green, head, LaVerne H. Bates, E. J. Griffin and H. O. Brown.

North Central's well-equipped manual training shop is under the direction of Mr. Youngman. The freshman or Manual Arts I class takes up wood turning, pattern making and household mechanics which consists of general repair and maintenance around home. The students in Manual Arts III specialize in social service work and in general school maintenance. Special Arts V class, which is devoted to advanced students, takes up advanced cabinet work, furniture making and larger and more difficult problems.

The Industrial Arts or Mechanical Drawing is under the direction of Mr. Straughn. The freshmen in this department take up the use of instruments and lettering, while the sophomores study development pattern and mechanical drawing of house plans is undertaken by the juniors. The most advanced class namely the seniors study machine drawing, convention and cams and complete detail drawing of the steam engine.

MATH DEPT.

Mathematics has evolved to us from the beginning of time. Her growth has viewed the rise and fall of nations, the strife and gloom of dark ages, the brilliancy of Rome. Yet, we have her still.

Mathematics herself is here and everywhere. She makes the sciences depend on her. She darts into the languages and histories. Business would fail without her. She is the rhythm of music, while art conceals her with its beauty. The awareness of the close harmony between Mathematics and the other named subjects leads us to predict chaos without her, and real living would be impossible. This then, is the answer to the question of why Mathematics has persevered through the ages.

At no time in history has the world witnessed the leaps of progress that man has made, as now. Mathematics must go hand in hand with the changes.

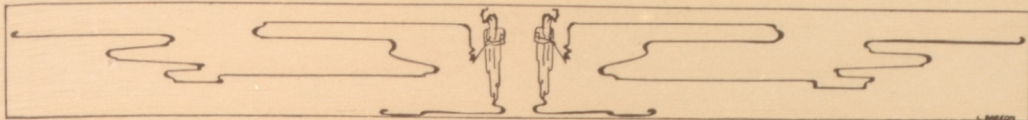

Industries with their intricate details and complex arrangements are demanding more and more of Mathematics. Already, they have felt the lack of trained mathematical workmen. As time goes on, the need seems to become greater. In machinery, in transportation, in the distances to be calculated—all these and more are requiring their share from Mathematics. Sharing these demands of industry are our recent inventions—the automobile, the radio, the aeroplane, etc.

* * * * *

Taking cognizance of these new relations, the courses as being taught had to be re-adjusted. The old formal algebra and geometry of our grandfather's has given place to modern mathematics. The fundamentals of these subjects are applied to their new fields of investigation. A common remark to-day from the student of twenty or thirty years ago is—"Mathematics isn't like it was when I went to school." Truly it isn't, and such is the mathematics as found at North Central.

Mathematics, the major term, has been subdivided into parts, named numbers, arithmetic, algebra, geometry, trigonometry, calculus, etc., not separate factions but interrelated. The divisions of the subject matter is not the same as was taught several years ago. Out of these changes has come our modern algebra taking the place of the old algebra. Geometry, too, has been altered in content if not in name.

North Central's mathematics deals not only in subject matter alone, but in subject matter adapted to the individuals. By an inquiry into the mathematical status of the students they are arranged or separated into groups according to mathematical accomplishment, speed in work, and loading capacity. Courses are arranged for maximum, average and minimum amounts of work, and students are grouped accordingly. There is a great deal of elasticity in these groups, however, for at any time it is felt that a student is in the wrong group he may be re-classified.

In geometry, aside from these three divisions, there is still another group termed laboratory geometry. In this there is a class for girls and one for boys. Each student has his drawing board, triangle, compass, and T-square, and proceeds by making plates of the exercises and propositions.

Not only the teachers, but students as well endorse this system. Proof of the approval by the students is best shown, perhaps, by results of a questionnaire given the members of these classes; eighty-three per cent preferred the segregated classes to the old form.

The ideals of the mathematics department of North Central has always been service to the students, trusting that these students will avail themselves of the opportunities to progress further. This in part, has been actually realized by reports of mathematics students who are now in other fields. Especially, from the colleges and universities where they have gone for further study, have come the records of high scholarship and attainments which had their beginnings at North Central.

North Central science department proves to be one of the most popular branches of study as there are 1275 students enrolled. The subjects dealt with are general science, biology, physics, chemistry and geology.

Mr. Endslow heads this department. Other science teachers are: Mr. Smith, Mr. Sloan-aker, Mr. Minard, Mr. Woods, Mr. Bonser, Miss Mueller, Mr. Roberts, Mr. Sanborn, and Mr. Neuman.

The boys' physical educational department of North Central has been the pride of the entire school for many years. The teams turned out by this department have filled the trophy case, and no small part of North Central spirit is created here.

Each boy is required to take two hours a week of gym work. This includes one hour of regular gym and an hour of swimming. When the classes are exceptionally large, often more than one instructor is in charge. If the weather permits, the gym classes are held on the playfield.

Mr. J. Wesley Taylor is head of the physical educational department and in this capacity schedules games with different schools in various sports. He is also track and cross-country coach. Usually about one hundred fellows turn out annually for these two sports.

Brick Johnson, a former North Central athlete, who coaches the swimming and football teams, started his football coaching here last fall by turning out an undefeated team.

Coach Guy Barnes, a former W. S. C. letterman coaches all freshman sports besides being head tennis coach.

Coach Red Reese guides the basketball squad and turned out a championship team also, who were runners up in the state tournament at Seattle.

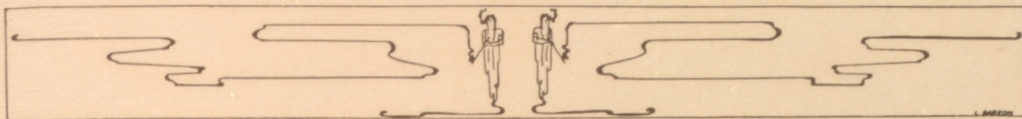

The physical educational department does not believe in eliminating any boy because he is a poor athlete, but rather, spends more time with him to better his ability. The motto of the department might be "Athletics for all."

Girls physical education under the able direction of Miss Elsa Pinkham has become one of the most popular branches of North Central activities.

Besides the regular class work the girls have interclass baseball, basketball, track, swimming and tennis.

The girls' two major sports are swimming and tennis, with meets against Lewis and Clark as a nucleus for diligent work and practice by the team aspirants.

This department co-operates with all school activities and has also given two pay convocations for the benefit of the playfield.

Miss Irma Jean Waters, who has been one of the instructor for three years, is a North Central alumnus. She was on the swimming team for four years, a member of the Vox Puellarum and president of the Girls' League. Miss Jahreiss has been for two years one of the instructors. Miss Elsa Pinkham has been head of this department for eleven years.

History has always been an interesting study, perhaps because it is constantly being made. There are 1319 students enrolled in this department, which includes world and United States history, sociology, economics and civics.

Mr. Ramsey has headed this department since 1912. The other teachers are: Miss Bemiss, Mr. Chandler, Mr. Reese, Mr. Becher, Mr. Rowlands, Mr. Collins, and Mrs. Zent.

ADMINISTRATIVE DEPT.

The administrative department of North Central is headed by Mr. Kennedy, principal, and Mr. Hawes, vice-principal. The girls working in the office are: Miss Wiedeman, secretary; Miss Carlson, assistant secretary and Miss Leonard, attendance clerk.

Mrs. Darknell is girls' advisor and director of the Girls' League.

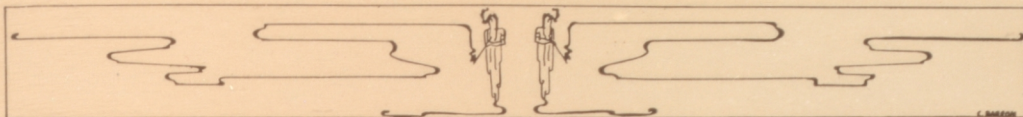

Mr. Bradford is the faculty director of the Boys' Federation, a position which he has filled since the Federation was organized.

Mrs. Baylis has charge of the vocational work and assists boys and girls in obtaining positions.

Miss Bacon is head librarian and Miss Jessie Brewer is her assistant. Miss Polly Southmayd also works in the library.

The North Central study hall teachers are: Mrs. Richardson, Mrs. Cowley and Mrs. Ashmun.

FINE ARTS, HOME ECONOMICS DEPTS.

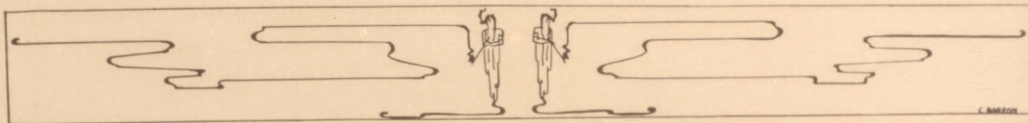

North Central's home economics department occupies six spacious rooms and this course covers just what the name implies. Clothing, foods, costume design, home making and home furnishings are all studied by the girls in this department.

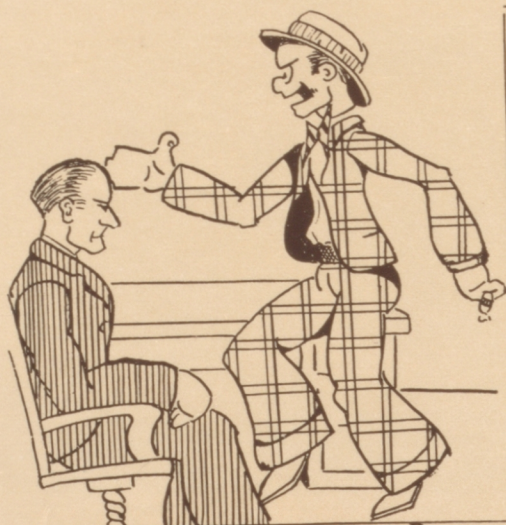

Miss Graham is head of this department. Other teachers in the department are: Miss Baker, Miss Dalquest, Miss McHugh, Miss Miesen, and Miss Riker.

The Art classes learn principles of design, perspective, lettering, color harmony and sketching. The applied design class, directed by Miss Riker, takes up Batik, weaving and pottery. The jewelry class under the direction of Miss Ashley studies craft work in metals which includes manufacturing of rings, bracelets, watch fobs and hammered metals.

North Central has an exceptionally fine art department under the direction of Miss Ashley and Miss Riker.

TO A DAISY

FIRST PRIZE POEM

By Elizabeth Brown

It was only a common daisy
Picked in a barren place,
But it brightened a dim little cottage
And a sick child's thin, white face;
And a mother, toilworn and weary
At close of a long, busy day
Took heart from the brave little flower,
For it gave her new strength to pray.

It was only a common daisy,
Faded and dead now, I know;
Yet it has brought hope to the heartsick,
So not in vain did it grow.
We can't all have roses and orchids,
We can't all have pleasure and rest;
So God made the common white daisies,
And I think that He loved them best.

SILVER

SECOND PRIZE POEM

By Jack Hopkins

A silver moon in a still-grey sky
Lights the world in a silver mist—
Fluttering trees with silvery leaves
Are, softly, by the breezes kissed.
A silver lake—its tiny waves
Lapping on a silver shore—
Poppies nodding in the breeze,
And fairies opening their store
Of silver fancies for the folk
Who live upon our earth by day—
Who go to work and seem severe—
Who think of fairies when they play.

Silver grasses bowing down
To things both near and far;—
Slender light-rays falling
From an ever distant star.
Silver insects crawling 'round—
A silver bird in flight—
Glittering lights and silent shadows—
Lovely, silver night.

THE TORMENT HOUR

THIRD PRIZE POEM

By Dorothy Drought

Between school hours and evening—
When my cares should nearly be o'er,
Comes a pause in the day's occupations
Which is known as the Torment Hour.

I hear in the chamber above me,
The flapping of leaves of books,
The sound of a door that is opened,
And voices from many nooks.

I see in the lamplight before me,
Descending the broad hall stairs,
Grave English and laughing Algebra
And Science with all its cares.

A sudden rush from the bookcase,
A sudden raid from the hall;
They come right into my castle,
And into my hands they fall.

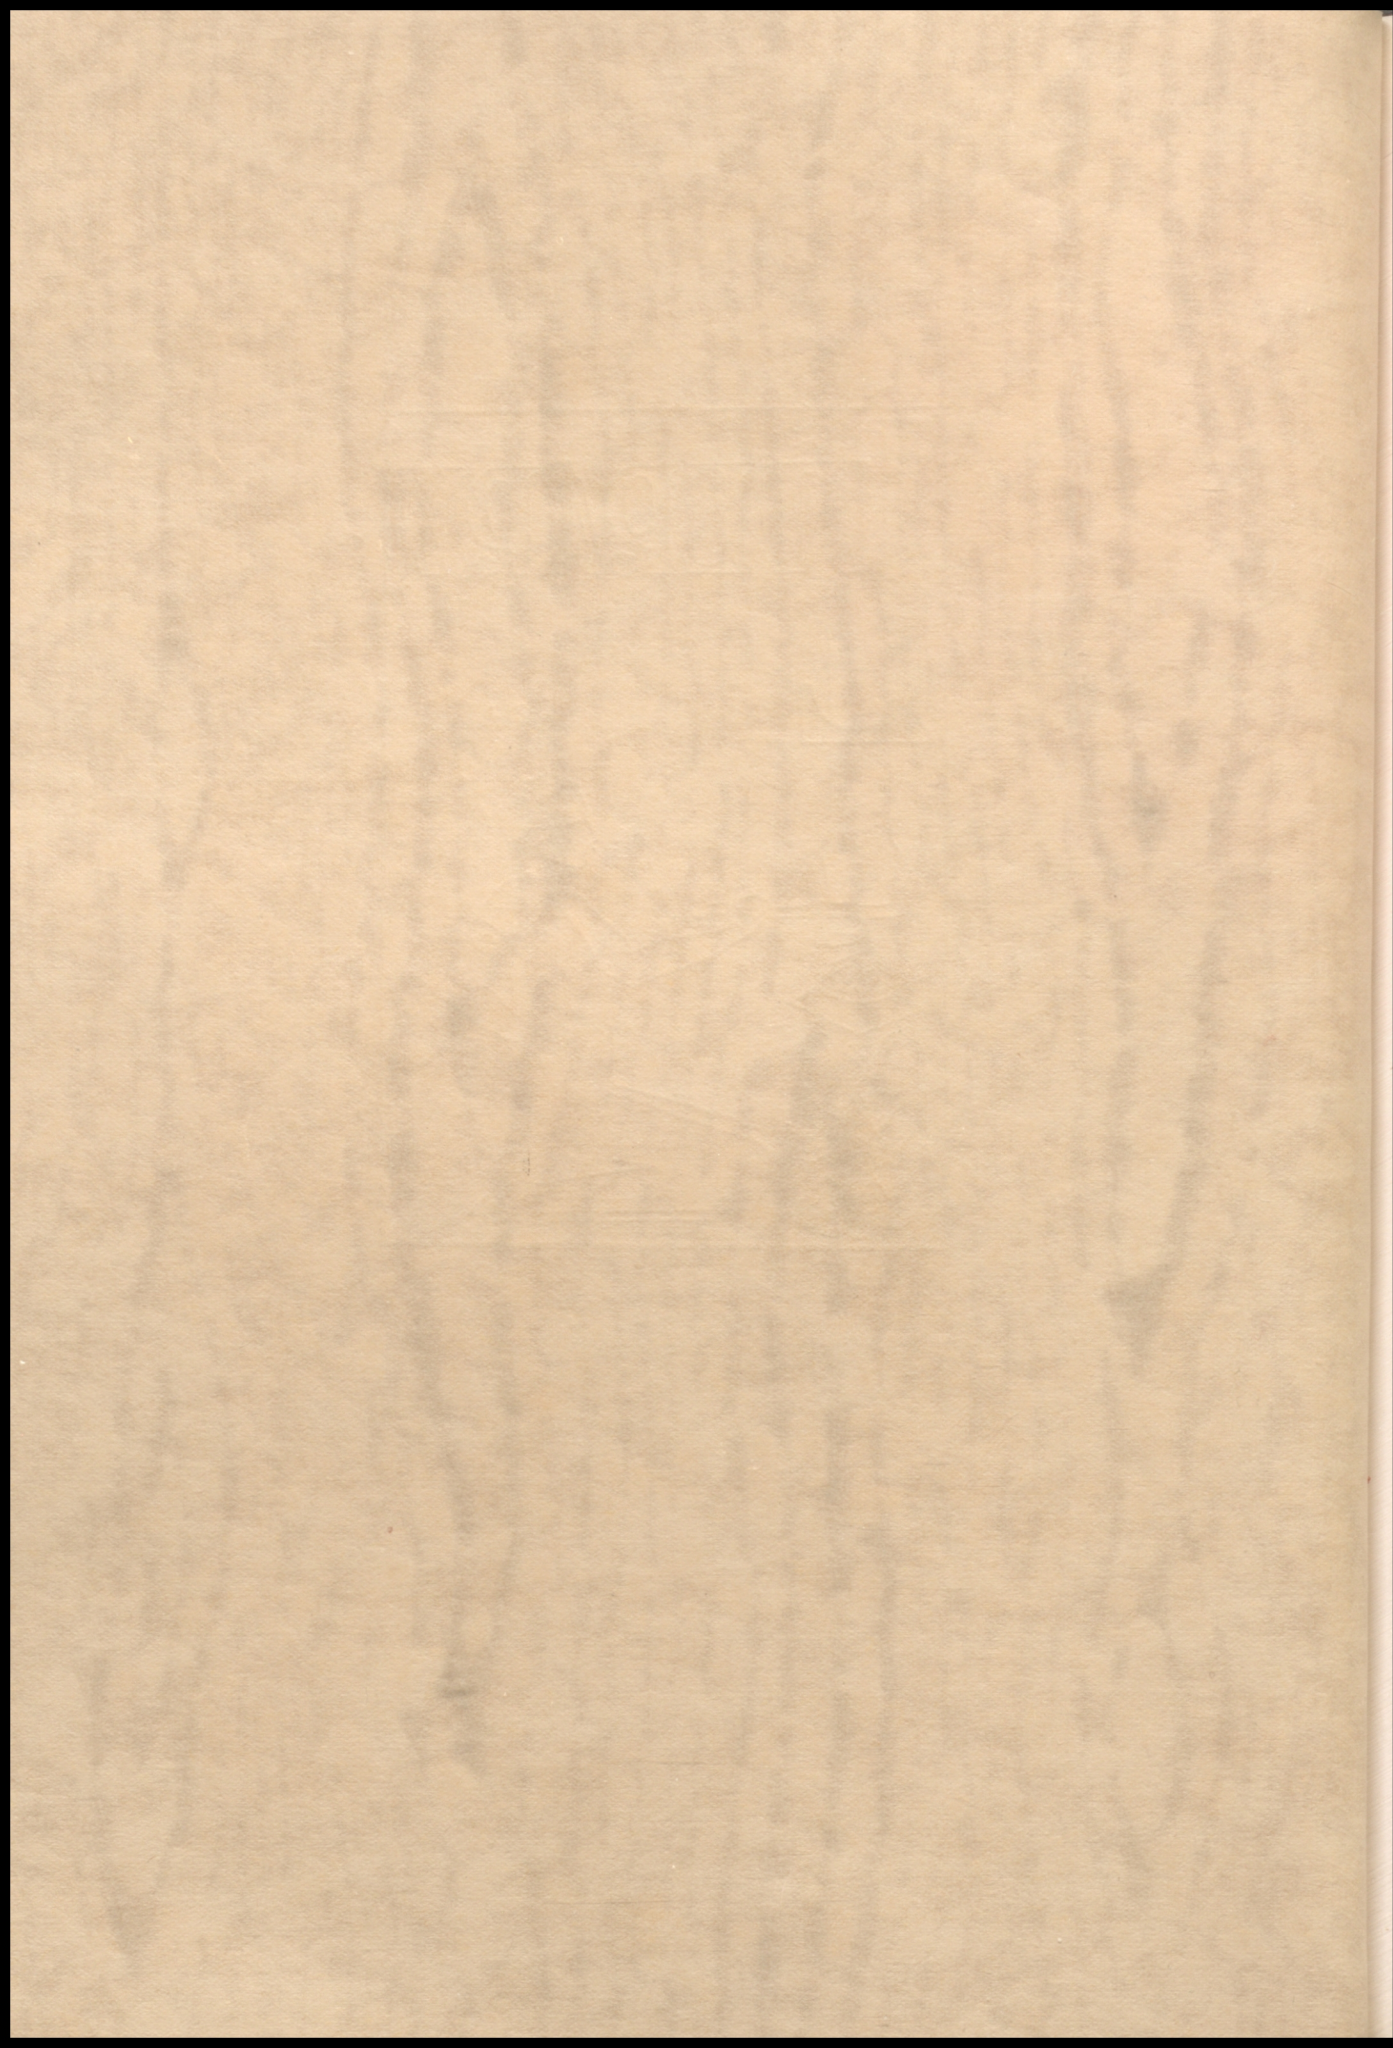

They climb up onto my table,
Hug the arms and back of my chair;
If I try to escape, they surround me;
They're always everywhere.
Do you think, O harsh-eyed banditti
Because you have scaled the wall,
Such a poor little wretch as I am,
Is not a match for you all?

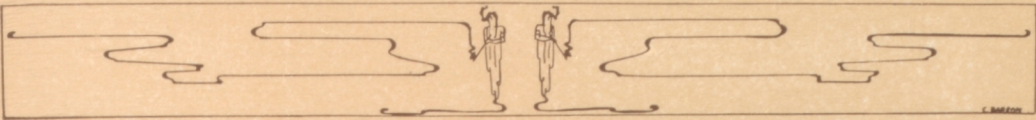

I'll put you fast in a fortress,
And will not let you depart;
I'll put you down in a dungeon,
From all poor students apart,
And there I will keep you forever;
Yes, forever and a day,
Until thy pages turn yellow and mildew
And moulder in dust away!

AIR CASTLES

I built a castle in the air;
Before a month had passed
Its walls had crumbled at my feet.
It was too frail to last.
I will not mourn my castle's fall;
All failure I will shun.
I'll gather up my shattered dreams
And build a stronger one.

SHORTHAND

"Shorthand has greatly helped me in my legal work," said a Spokane lawyer recently. "In fact it has been as necessary to me as my knowledge of Latin."

It is not unusual for a lawyer to say this. In fact members of other professions also use shorthand extensively.

Far from being a recent development, this method of writing has been in use for centuries. Even during the time of the Romans, shorthand writers scribbled frantically, trying to keep up with such orators as Cicero and Demosthenes. The unfortunate Roman scribe had to memorize several thousand symbols; that is, if he wished to take dictation.

Of course there has been some advancement in the art, and today, the Gregg system has supplanted the "human dictionary" method. Letters of the alphabet, prefixes, suffixes, etc. are represented by a symbol, and every word is written exactly as it is pronounced. For example, solve is written solv, mention becomes menshun, etc.

This style of writing is particularly useful in taking notes, as in debate, law, and other lines of work that require a great deal of research. Shorthand is something that any student can find a use for.

PRACTICAL EDUCATION

Should carpenters and printers be trained in school instead of by apprenticeship?

This is the question which a decade ago aroused the interest of educational minds throughout the country. Many arguments were advanced against technical training in school. Some educators claimed that the expense involved outweighed the advantages; that technical training required costly machinery which soon was out of date.

Other educators pointed out the fact that chemists, druggists, and doctors were trained in school. "The expense of this professional training," they said, "is fully as great as that involved in vocational education."

Despite protests, vocational training has become an established fact. It has almost entirely supplanted the old system of apprenticeships. Today, electrical work, toolmaking, carpentering and many other trades are taught in school.

The general result has been to make education more practical and useful.

TRIAL BY TORTURE

Several thousand years ago, Cromagnon man considered it the highest form of wit to hit an associate with a heavy, stone club. No doubt he did this to see whether or not his friend possessed "the saving grace of humor."

As time went on, he added some improvements to this playful "kidding," and he played practical jokes on persons who were not among his circle of friends. Burning splinters he thrust into the flesh of captives. Red hot coals were sometimes applied and afterwards, perhaps the victim might be refreshed with a shower of hot tar or pitch.

With these tortures, as with all things pertaining to dead civilizations, modern progress has played a softening and enlightening part. There are still initiations. But today, the paddle has supplanted the heavy, stone club; and eggs, varnish and flypaper are applied to the initiate instead of hot tar or pitch.

Modern clubs and organizations are conservative. The paddle is the sign of progress. The stone club has gone to stay.

PUBLICITY SEEKERS

"Tap tap"

"Ahem"

"Mooooooo"

That these sounds are not symptoms of the hoof and mouth disease, is proved by the fact that they irregularly sound in our study halls, which are inhabited by students, not animals.

Such noises serve, however, as a symbol of progress.

In times gone by spitwads were thrown, whispers and notes exchanged and other malefactions committed. Enjoying the advantages of 20th century education, high school students, today, turn their minds to occupations more befitting their carefully trained and well-developed intellects.

This is evidenced by the aforementioned noises. Sometimes they are mere tappings on the desk; other times, loud "ahems." Then again, students are convulsed with laughter by a barely audible "moo." The keenness of intelligence required in making these noises is rather overwhelming, but we must remember that probably hours of preparations were spent in devising them.

Generations may come and go, but as Shakespeare did not say, "People in all periods and conditions of life are afflicted by the publicity bug."

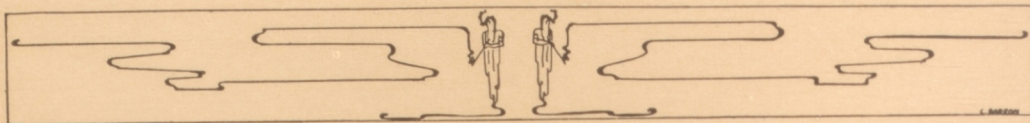

COLLEGE

"I wish I'd never seen a college campus," wrote a teacher in the American magazine recently.

She had worked her way through college with the aid of scholarships, borrowed money and work.

The result she summed up as follows: "I had to do without every pleasure and luxury in the years when those things are most important. In return for all this I had a little book learning—which I could have got at home—and I had a debt of $1400 to which was accruing interest at 5%."

Of course, every college graduate does not have this experience. However, every student who works his way through a university must encounter the same difficulties.

The Porthole

FIRST PRIZE STORY

By Gordon Reckord

On the coast of Virginia there is a sandy projection that stretches out into the sea. It is known, because of its shape and its treachery, as the Cat's Paw. On the land end of the Paw the Kitty Bird life saving station snugly lies in the cove made by the Cat's Paw. The Cat's Paw is a bleak, sand peninsula covered with bushes and low trees. The only object of interest about the Cat's Paw lies off the sea end of the peninsula. That is, it did until it moved. This object was an old wreck.

It had appeared out of a fierce storm one April night, two years before. No one knew whose it was or from whence it had come, but it was a generally accepted fact that the storm had picked it up on some far beach and carried it to rest on the sandy Cat's Paw. There it had remained, held fast by the clinging sand.

Dan Keller, son of Captain Hank Keller of the life saving station, had often vowed to visit the wreck; but he had delayed and delayed for two years until one fine October morning Dan was running his light outboard motor past the wreck. He had told his father that he was going into the little fishing town which is around the paws of the Cat's Paw in order that he might buy some new manila rope for a tiny schooner which he was making in his spare time. As he planned to visit one of his chums in the town, he had told his father not to expect him home before morning.

Now as he passed the derelict, the thought to examine it struck him. Why not? He could put off his buying the rope, but he had vowed to visit the boat many times.

Immediately, he turned the outboard around and headed for the wreck. Shutting off the motor, Dan drifted easily up to the side of the boat. He fastened the painter to a convenient spike and climbed over the side. The boat's deck was about fifty feet long and had a beam of sixteen feet.

The deck was clean except for the stump of the main mast and the fo'castle hatch cover. This, apparently, was the only entrance into the hold. Dan experienced some difficulty in prying up the cover; but with the aid of a broken spar which he found in the corner of the deck, he was able to move the cover so that he could just squeeze through the narrow opening.

In the meantime little choppy waves had begun to appear on the surface of the bay. A slight wind came up from the land and gently rocked the skiff tied to the side of the wreck. Low, black, ominous clouds, scudding on the back of the wind, gradually began to fill the sky. A severe storm was brewing.

Dan, unmindful of this, had lowered himself into the fo'castle by a rickety ladder. The fo'castle was empty, with the exception of a broken keg of old hand-made pikes which had been heavy enough to resist the movements of the ship. Two small portholes on each side of the fo'castle wall admitted enough light for Dan to see in the fo'castle; but when he went through the fo'castle bulkhead into the damp hold, he had to use his carbon lantern which he had brought from the outboard for this purpose.

The hold was half filled with dank, rotten lumber. The keel was covered with dark water that sloshed about as if vainly seeking escape from its prison. Once Dan scared a bat from its perch. It went off fluttering across the hold and landed on a pile of lumber. Dan suddenly thought he noticed a slight movement of the boat. He turned to leave the hold, but just then, he was pitched forward on his face. The boat made a sickening move of about three feet and then settled as if ready to run a race but held by some irresistible force. The old wreck was sliding off the Cat's Paw. Dan gave a shout, turned and ran stumbling and splashing in the bilge for the fo'castle bulkhead. Reaching the door he pulled himself up onto the fo'castle floor. Just as he gained his feet, the boat gave another lurch. To his great dismay, he saw the hatch cover slide lazily into place. Dan raced up the flimsy ladder and heaved his shoulders against the cover but it was of no use. The cover had been firmly lodged in place by the last heave of the boat. It could not be moved from the inside. The little ladder had been broken away under the heaving of Dan's shoulders.

Dan went to the porthole and looked out. No wonder the old wreck had moved. The sky was black with huge clouds. Faintly in the distance, Dan could see and hear mountainous waves breaking on the coast. Giant waves beat against the ship's hull. It was no small wonder the boat hadn't moved off the beach entirely.

Dan sat down to await developments and attempt to figure out some means of escape from the cell. He took out his sea manual to take up the time, but he had difficulty in reading because it was quickly growing dark. Just before closing the book, he noticed the advertisement of a semaphore arm, telling how it could be used at night. It was a simple affair consisting of a lantern in a box. A round hole in the box, opened and closed by a shutter, allowed the light of the lantern to escape in such a way that dots and dashes could be made with the shutter. This advertisement remained in Dan's mind until when cleaning his lantern the idea to use it as a means of rescue suddenly occurred to him.

Dan ran into the hold and secured a small piece of lumber. Taking one of the big spikes that lay scattered on the fo'castle floor, he drilled a hole through the board; with the aid of a large piece of wood, he drove the spike into the side of the ship just beside the porthole. Then lighting his carbon light, he hung it from the fo'castle ceiling in front of the porthole. By raising and lowering the board in front of the porthole he was able to make dots and dashes much in the same manner as the patent flasher set.

Dan merely made the letters S. O. S., for the board was heavy and it tired him quickly to move the board across the porthole. Now and then Dan would rest, and it was during one of these rests that Dan thought he heard someone shout. He rushed to the porthole and called, but his words were snatched from his mouth by the terrific wind which was now blowing. The wreck swayed from side to side in an alarming manner. Dan could now and then hear his small boat smash against the side of the wreck until he wondered if it could possibly be saved.

Dan kept up his signals, but in his heart he felt as if all were lost. The boat was beginning to move steadily and at last, he could feel it slide off the sand. It was then he heard his father's voice, and it was not long before he could hear strong hands tearing and ripping up the hatch cover. Dan stretched out his hands and was soon hauled up through the hatch.

"Oh God," said Captain Keller, "I thought sure ye'd gone." He turned quickly and ordered the men to put off quickly before the wreck would carry them too far out to sea.

It was not until the next morning that Dan learned that his signal for help had been seen by the lighthouse man at Willow point, three miles down the coast, and had read Dan's message relaying it to the Kitty Bird station. The crew had immediately set out for the wreck, and when they were just in sight of her and had recognized Dan's skiff, the wreck had slid off the sand. To date the wreck has not been seen. It was thought that it probably went to the bottom soon after Dan had been taken off. Dan was not the lone survivor of the wreck, however, for a small white ship's rat had taken refuge in Dan's skiff which was saved by the crew. Dan has made the rat his pet and has taught it many tricks.

ASK TED LAWSON

"How's that boy of yours getting along at the barber college?"

"Fine. They just elected him shear leader."

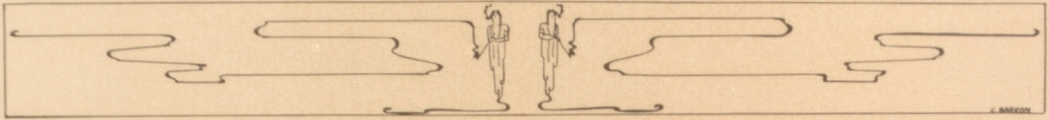

"Is my face dirty or is it my imagination?"

"Your face is clean; I don't know about your imagination."

Happy Hunting Ground

SECOND PRIZE STORY

By Laurel Penman

Peace had spread itself over the scene. The sun shone warmly down. A soft west wind brought the sweet, damp odor of newly growing plants. Smoke from the tepee tops rose languidly into the blue sky. The voices of naked, little, copper-colored children mingled with the songs of birds. With a roar the mighty Columbia tore on its way.

There seemed to be no action in the small encampment. No adult Indians were in sight except two or three old women who were sunning themselves in the entrances of their tepees.

Even though the scene was peaceful to the eye, in the hearts of the redmen of that village of thirty tepees was fear.

The night before, Black Bear, son of Chief Eagle Wing, had returned home. With him had come his bosom companions, Sun Man and Scar Face, sons of lesser chiefs. The three had brought with them Talking Pine, the daughter of a high chief of the Walla Walla nation.

The three young men had met a white trader and had purchased some of the white man's fire water. While under the influence of the liquor, Black Bear and his companions had found the Walla Walla chief and his daughter encamped alone in the hills. They had killed the girl's father and had taken Talking Pine prisoner. Before getting home, the three braves had realized what they had done, but they went on to their village and gave the girl to Chief Eagle Wing. After confessing their misdemeanor to Eagle Wing, they had traveled north to escape punishment. The girl had been sent back to her people with an humble apology and with a promise to pay the Walla Wallas for the death of their chief.

The people were waiting for an answer to their message to the Walla Wallas with fear in their hearts; for if the Walla Wallas were not satisfied by the offer, the tiny village would be wiped out in a single battle.

About sundown a runner entered the village and went straight to the lodge of Dark Moon. Excitement ran high, for the runner was the envoy to the Walla Wallas.

A few minutes after sundown the tom-toms began to call the people to council. Men, women and even children gathered about the council fire because the very existence of their tribe depended on the message which the runner had brought.

When silence came over the assembly, Dark Moon, the highest chief, stepped into the fire light inside the council circle. He began to speak.

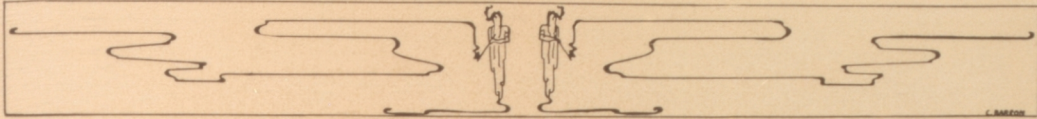

"My people, I bring you a message. You know what Black Bear and his companions, Sun Man and Scar Face have done. I sent an offer of payment to the Walla Wallas, and this is their answer: 'Give to us for torture those who killed our chief, or we will avenge his death by the death of your whole tribe!' They also sent a rattlesnake skin stuffed with mud and with an arrow through its head. What shall we do?"

"Black Bear and his companions have gone. They are not braves. The white man's fire-water weakened them. They are not worthy of the name of warriors. They have gone north to escape the anger of our tribe and of the Walla Wallas."

"The Walla Wallas are a powerful nation; we are weak. We can not escape their anger except by giving up Black Bear and his companions. We can not give them up because they are not here. What shall we do?"

The old chief took his seat in the council ring. A buzz of excited voices arose. So this was the terrible but just sentence imposed by the Walla Wallas!

Eagle Wing arose and advanced into the fire-light. The flickering light showed the sadness and sorrow of his noble, old face. Some years before, a priest called Black Coat by the Indians had taught this tribe. Black Coat's teachings of love and of forgiveness had made a deep impression on the mind of simple Eagle Wing. He had become a Christian before the old priest had died. As a result of these lessons in Christianity, Eagle Wing had kept his tribe out of war. He now wished to save bloodshed.

"Tribesmen," he spake, "I sorrow for my son and for Sun Man and Scar Face. They have not acted as brave warriors should act. They have disobeyed the word of the white man's God, who also is our God. He said, 'Do not kill.' The good Black Coat, who lies in his grave on the hill, taught us this. Our sons have disobeyed this law, but they were not entirely to blame. The white man's fire-water took their minds. They could not help what they did. I love my son, and I fear for our tribe. There is but one thing to do. I will give myself to the Walla Wallas for torture. Then our men will not be killed, and our women and children made into slaves. My son has disgraced me; I love him, but I have no further wish to live."

Eagle Wing resumed his seat in the circle. For a minute no one spoke. Such an act no one had heard of except from the mouth of the Black Coat, who read from a book. This book told of a man named Jesus Christ, who had died to save others. He had been tortured for the sake of mankind; but for an Indian, a chief, to sacrifice his life to shield some guilty braves and to shield his tribe was unheard of.

Chief after chief arose and tried to persuade Eagle Wing not to do this act, but their pleading was in vain. Eagle Wing had decided.

Four days after the council, Eagle Wing arrived at the Walla Walla encampment. Talking Pine identified him not as her father's slayer, but as the one who had sent her back to her people.

The Walla Wallas at first did not wish to accept Eagle Wing. They wished to free him and pursue the slayers. Eagle Wing was obstinate and asked that the lives of his son and of his tribe be spared.

The Walla Wallas admired the bravery of Eagle Wing, but they could not understand him.

Savage justice demanded that someone suffer for the slaying. It was decided that Eagle Wing should die. They would not torture him, and they permitted him to choose his means of death. Eagle Wing chose the river.

The next morning just before sunrise, the whole Walla Walla nation assembled on the river bank above the rapids to watch the strange act of one man giving his life for another.

Without a paddle Eagle Wing entered his small canoe. His face was calm. The canoe was swept out into the stream toward the roaring rapids. Eagle Wing rose from his knees and stood upright as the canoe entered the rapids. He raised both of his arms toward the sky. The canoe turned sideways, tipped, was sucked into a whirlpool, and disappeared.

A long wail went up from the people on the shore as the spirit of Eagle Wing was gathered into the arms of the Almighty.

THE SEASONS

FOURTH PRIZE POEM

By Evelyn Newman

Spring tiptoed in with a swiftness rare
And gave new life to all the land.
Then close on her heels in elfin band,
Stole Summer's flowers so fair.

Summer's passing found Autumn in reign,
And a tinge of dusk-red colored the earth.
But her deepening beauty was nipped in its birth;

As in, Old King Winter and Jack Frost came.

To me the seasons seem a game,
More fascinating in each play.
I love each season just the same,
For when its enchantment is on the wane,
It bursts afresh in a different way,
And then new beauties bewitch me again.

L. Glen Minard, well known chemistry instructor, says that brevity may be the soul of wit, but he doesn't want his test papers to be funny. (It's a fact. For full particulars see the gentleman in question.)

Always a supporter of all school activities, The North Central News has contributed to much of the success of school and community affairs. By giving publicity to contests of all kinds, campaigns and Community Chest drives, it has exerted a very active effort in making North Central a leader among the city high schools.

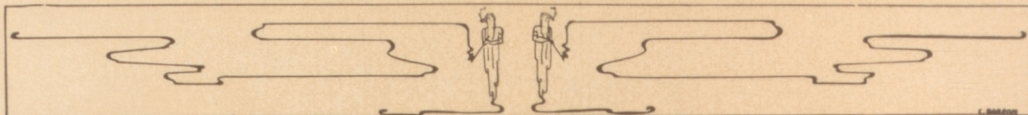

During the time The News has served the school, it has won national recognition. In January, 1923, it was elected to membership in the Central Interscholastic Press association. It was awarded first place as the best high school paper in the all-American contest in December, 1922.

In the Central Interscholastic Press association contest for 1923, The News took first place in headlines and make-up. It was rated as a first class paper in the National newspaper contest. The News was judged the best state high school paper for the fall of 1924 and the spring of 1925 by the Sigma Delta Chi honorary journalistic fraternity of the University of Washington. It also received all-American rating in the spring of 1927. Entered in the contest in 1929, it again received an all-American rating.

VOX SHOW

Variety was decidedly the keynote of the Vox show this year. It was a success in every sense of the word. The proceeds were given to the playfield. The audience was well pleased and the show itself was a clever combination of harmony, comedy, classical music and dramatics.

Credit for the success is due in a large part to Miss Christine McRae, the director, and to Miss Dorothy Stewart, the president. The program was as follows:

I. The Vox Quintet

Margaret Misselhorn, Frances Russ, Opal Schrock, Lois Ferris and Jeanne Cunningham, piano.

II. Our Aunt from California

Scene: Living room of the Needy home.

Characters:

Rosalie Needy	Charlotte Harding
Felicia Needy	Adelaide Dehuff
Sally Needy	Bertha George
Mrs. Merry Muntoburn	Lucille Somer
Miss Wilcox	Dorothy Stewart
Mrs. Needy	Elizabeth Parker
Maid	Margaret Bardsley

III. Sparks

Rita Jahreiss, Irma Jean Waters, Elsa Pinkham.

IV. Comedy

1. Just Life

A. Margaret Misselhorn, Dorothy Barton, Roberta Tuttle, man.

B. Mary M. Walsh and Jeanne Cunningham, man.

2. Simpsville Seminary Dancers

Margaret Misselhorn, Dorothy Barton, Frances Russ, Marjorie Corbit, Opal Schrock, Susan Malcolm, Roberta Tuttle.

3. Bicycle Built for "One"

Mary Walsh.

4. Nightmare May Dance

Margaret Misselhorn, Dorothy Barton, Opal Schrock, Marjorie Corbit, Frances Russ, Roberta Tuttle and Susan Malcolm.

V. Faculty—Lochinvar

Miss Jones, Mrs. Parish, Mrs. Krause, Misses Baker, Meisen, Ennis, Freakes, Waters, Pinkham, Messrs. Taylor, Youngman, Barnes.

VI. The Wedding of the Painted Doll

Margaret Misselhorn, Jeanne Cunningham, Maurine Taylor, Mary Tuttle, Susan Malcolm, Dorothy Barton, Marjorie Corbit, Opal Schrock, Frances Russ, Roberta Tuttle, Charlotte Harding, Ellen Turnley, Margaret Bardsley, Elizabeth Parker, Laura Reeves, Mary M. Walsh and Gladys Gilbert.

VII. Classical

VIII. Dancing Revue

A. Baltimore Stomp—Dorothy Barton and Laura Reeves.

B. Acrobatic Dance—Bernice Casey.

C. Waltz—Betty Cook, Dorothy Barton, Elizabeth Parker, Laura Reeves, Adelaide Dehuff, Charlotte Harding, Kathleen Flynnne, Ellen Turnley, Pauline Kipp, Margaret Bardsley, Bertha George, Helen Lieb, and Elaine O'Donnell.

D. Character Dance—Evelyn Mowbray.

E. Something New—Elaine O'Donnell and Lucia Whitmarsh.

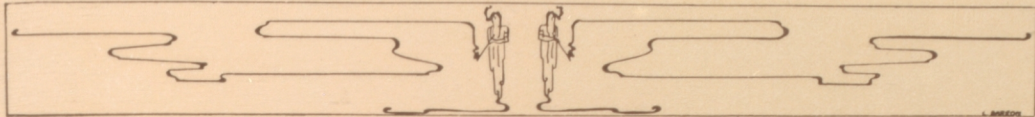

F. Jazz Song and Dance.

Laura Reeves, Dorothy Barton, Betty Cook, Kathleen Flynnne, Beatrice White, Elizabeth Parker, Naomi Melde, Ellen Turnley, Margaret Bardsley, Bertha George, Helen Lieb, Lucia Whitmarsh.

IX. Finale—Entire club.

HI-JINX

Humor, harmony and dancing were combined in the fifteenth annual Delta Hi-Jinx, which was given March 29 and 30. Proceeds from the show, $488.10, exceeded those of any previous entertainment given in the history of the school. Part of the profits were given to the playfield.

Acts were well coached and pleased the large audiences which attended both nights. Ten large acts and a finale made up the show.

1. Delta orchestra—Harry Hale, director, Robert Glascock, George Davis, Dave Slee, Verrol Henry and Harley Reckord.

2. Static—Clyde Vigil, Pete Graham.

3. Two Black Magpies—Leonard Foster, Wally Acton.

4. The House on Sicily Boulevard—Setting, London; Time, present. Characters: Ewing Gehrke, Hu Ratio Algiers; Tom Mason, Alfred Stinson; Leonard Sugrue, Lord De Sink; John McCallum, Percival Spongebath; Bob Grieve, Archibald Shaw; Roland Johnson, lawyer.

5. Stepping Around—Ethel Witherspoon, Ella Foth.

6. ??????—Norman Wilson, Ralph Hove.

7. Shooting of Dan McGrew—Setting, Yukon, Alaska; Time, Klondike gold rush. Characters: Stanley Colburn, Lady known as Lou; Mentor Dahlen, Dangerous Dan McGrew; Ewing Gehrke, Stranger from the Creeks; Ray Berggren, Kid at the Music Box; Dan Dech, Horton Herman, Bert Ressa, Howard McNew, Oscar Browst, Tom Mason, Phil Schmitt, Roland Johnson, Alfred Dibblee, miners.

8. The Crows' Nest—Ward Paddleford, Harley Reckord.

9. Abie's Busted Nose—Jerry Kopet, Milton Wyatt.

10. Falling Stars—Tumblers: Tom Mason, Howard McInerney, Guy Barnes; tramps: Brick Johnson, Howard McNew, Ewing Gehrke.

11. Finale—Entire Club.

Business manager was Pete Graham; advertising manager, Milton Wyatt; property manager, Norman Wilson; head usher, Winston Jones; stage manager, Clinton Bailie.

PENROD

Every promise of "a laugh a minute" was fulfilled when "Penrod" was staged April 16 by the dramatic department before an enthusiastic audience of 1200 people. As the play was put on only one night many were refused admittance. Jerry Kopet was business manager and Marjorie Persons, publicity manager.

Each member of the cast fitted his part exceptionally well and added originality to it. The profits were used to buy a new curtain for the stage. Miss Martha Pearl Jones, dramatic director, coached the play in which the following students appeared:

Tim	Max Weber
Della	Esther Hawley
Mary Schofield	Maurine Taylor
Mr. Jones	Sidwell Collins
Jarge	Kenneth Robertson
Robert Williams	Jerry Kopet
Mrs. Bassett	Grace Jones
Henry P. Schofield	Howard Clark
Margaret Schofield	Helen Chadwick
Herbert Hamilton Dade	Robert Cory
Penrod Schofield	Milton Wyatt
Sam Williams	Winston Jones
Mrs. Williams	Marie Pelnar
Marjorie Jones	Susan Malcolm
Georgie Bassett	Howard Harris
Rev Lester Kinoslign	Chalmer Nance
Herman	Bill Rodgers
Verman	John Blanchard
Mr. Coombes	Roland Telford

DOG CHARACTERS

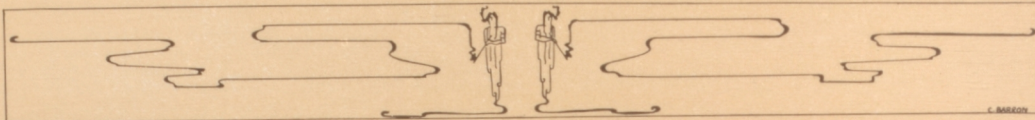

Georgie's dog	"Bebe" Waters
Jarge's dog	"King" Robertson
"Mike"	"Mike" Barnes

THE "DOLL SHOP"

Probably one of the best received convocations offered this semester, known as the "Doll Shop," was staged by the girls' physical education department.

Those who took part in the program were: Twin buyers, Doris and Lucille Boyer; shop keeper, Clarence Talbot; surprises, Muriel Glayzer, Margaret Misselhorn and Maurine Taylor. The dancing dolls were: Virginia Todd, Pamela Persons, Marguerite Chandler, Bertha George, Marie Pelnar, Thelma Nicodemus, Doris Whitford, Mary Jane Gilbert, Elaine Stanaway, Marjorie Persons, Marlowe Dittebrandt, Catherine Dittebrandt, Lucille Somers, Helen Canfield, Joyce Wertenberger, Ethel Witherspoon, Ella Foth.

Bernice Casey, Edna Ritche, Doris Brown,

Margaret Webb, Marian Heideman, Blanche Ruelle, Edith Mitze, Jean Nelson, Vera Crosby, Ethlyn Larson, Beatrice Bemiss, Lucia White-marsh, Ethel Vensel, Elaine O'Donnell, Mary Ellen Garrell, Dorothy Stanaway, Hazel Miles, Marjorie Masterman, Charlotte Sellars, Helen Wilson, Willabelle Stafford, Mona Miller, Kathleen Flynnne, Margaret Wittman, Norine

Larkin, Ellen Cavanaugh, Ruth Walker, Dorothy Barton, Margaret Bardsley, Betty Cook and Audrey Robb.

The proceeds, $145.00, were given to the playfield. Those assisting Miss Pinkham were: Irma Jean Waters, Rita Jahreiss, Martha Pearl Jones, C. Olin Rice, Miss Dahlquist, Miss Ashley and Mr. Youngman.

Much less time is spent on orchestra work than on any other branch of music at North Central, but under the skillful direction of C. Olin Rice, the orchestra is always ready to play whenever it is asked. Members are:

First Violin—Ruth Berg, Betty Gibb, John Dimond, Gardner Morgan, Leslie Hildenbrandt, Maxine Armstrong, Elizabeth Peery, Esther Jorgensen, Stanley White, Wayne Graham, Carl Butz, Vivienne Poull, Helen Holton, Bettye Jacobsen, Dorothy Gregg, Muriel Glayzer, and Geraldine Rehfeldt.

Second Violin—Marian Dortch, Kathleen Miles, Vernon Nysoe, Josephine Heywood, Arnola Sharpnack, Phyllis Jacobsen, Gladys

Brewer, Howard Clark, James Scharbach, Robert Brandt, Emma Schweppe, Ethel Aune, Frances Beam, and Jack Woods.

Viola—Dwight Sailor and Loris Winn. Cello—Constance Jordan and Kathleen Gerking. String Bass—Edwin Atwood and Fred Blackwell. Flute—Roberta Shanks and Harold Chase. First Clarinet—Richard Ireland. Second Clarinet—Harry Hale. Oboe—Elwyn Armstrong.

First Cornet—Verrol Henry. Second Cornet—John Condit. Horn—Walter Boomer. Trombone—Dave Slee and Harold Nelson. Drums—Arthur Unicume. Piano—Bertha Enfield.

CLASS PLAY CAST

One of the most successful class plays ever given at North Central was "Daddy Long-Legs," presented May 10 and 11 under the direction of Martha Pearl Jones.

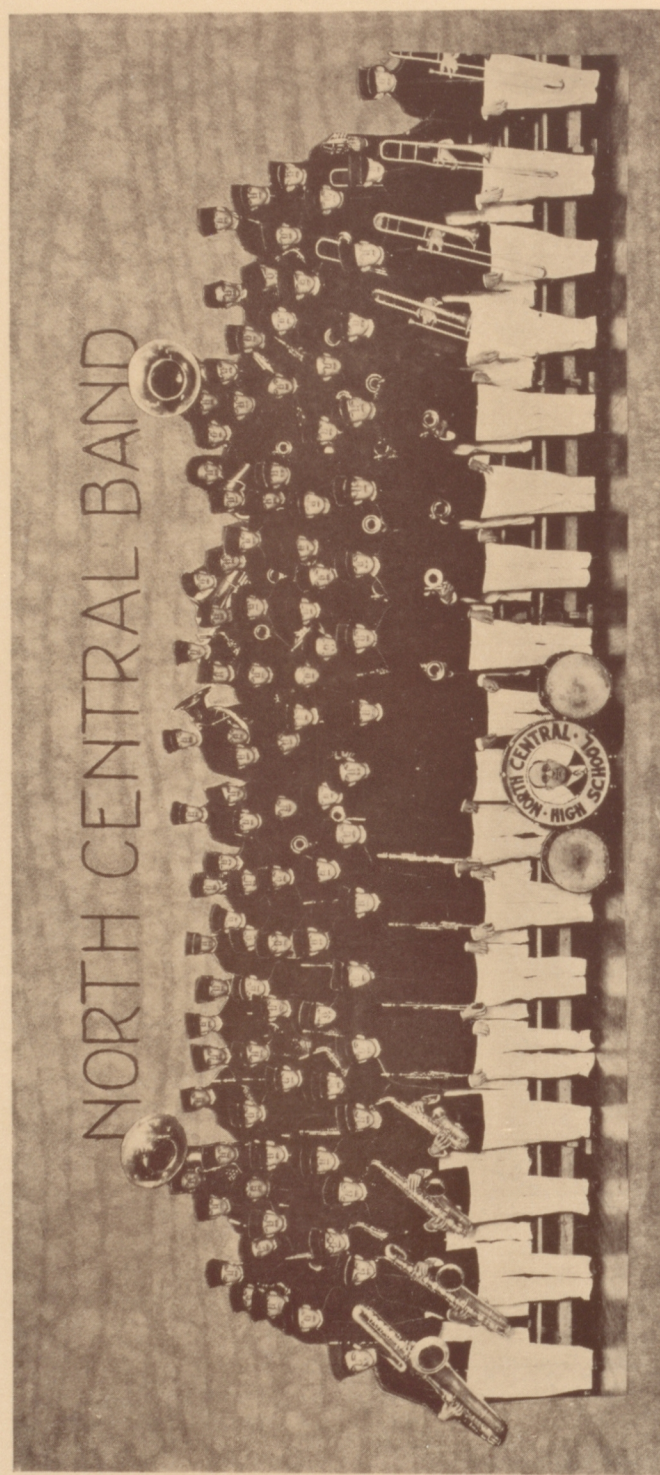

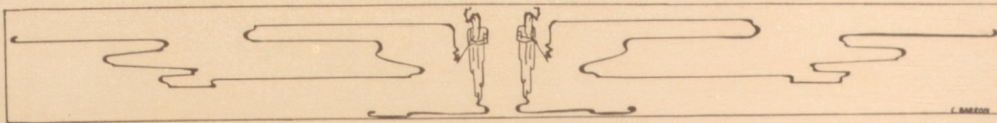

"Daddy Long-Legs" combines humor and pathos in delightful plot centered about Jerusha Abbott, little orphan girl who is sent to college by her "Daddy Long-Legs." Arthur Dehuff gave a splendid interpretation of "Daddy Long-Legs" and Marjorie Persons and Lucia Whitmarsh characterized Judy Abbott cleverly.

James McBride Jerry Kopet, Milton Wyatt.
Cyrus Wykoff .. Howard Clark, Winston Jones.
Abner Parsons Robert Cory, Howard Harris

The part of Miss Pritchard, an elderly woman who was always planning for Judy, was taken by Katherine Millar in a creditable manner. Others in the cast were:

Griggs	Kenneth Robertson
Walters	Chalmer Nance, Sidwell Collins.
Mrs. Pendleton	Grace Jones
Julia Pendleton	Virginia Steward
	Marie Pelnar
Sallie McBride	Margaret Misselhorn
	Dorothy Barton
Mrs. Semple	Maurine Taylor, Opal Schrock
Mrs. Lippett	Eleanor Peterson
Sadie Kate	Susan Malcolm, Ada Held
Gladiola	Margaret Witte, Helen Chadwick
Loretta	Esther Hawley
Mamie	Ada Held, Susan Malcolm
Freddie Perkins	John Blanchard
Carrie	Ada Held
Maid	Rose Loomis

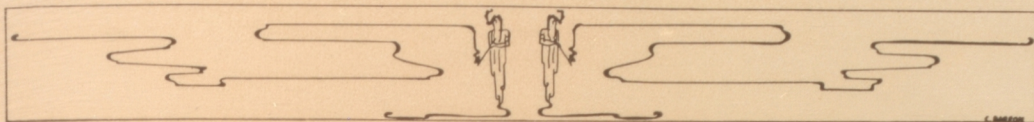

NORTH CENTRAL BAND

is required and the pep band answers the call for popular music.

Semi-annual concerts are presented both as ensemble profits and as a mean of raising funds. The band now possesses full dress uniforms for 100 players. At this semester's concert E. Ronald Rice, an alumnus of the class of 1925, was presented in flute solos. The program was well received by the audience.

One hundred boys who play wind instruments are given musical training in the North Central band. The full band is divided into smaller units for the purpose of giving more intensive work on certain lines. Boys with little experience are given opportunity in the junior band; the concert band holds the interest of more finished players; the saxophone quintet represents the organization when a small group

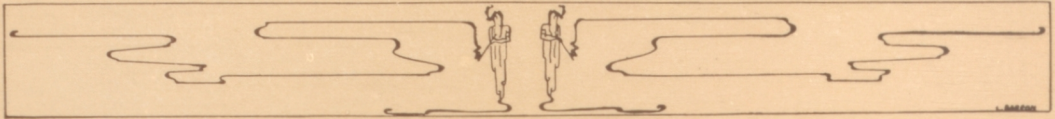

The Ahlquist debates were conducted under a new system this spring. Debaters were divided into groups according to their experience instead of their classification in school. Group A was composed of those who had participated in interscholastic debates, and group B of those who had not had any previous experience. Both groups debated the same question, "Resolved, That the plans for enlarging the United States Navy at present are consistent with our policy of world peace."

Group A debated in convocation Tuesday,

April 23. The negative team, composed of Charles Campbell and Dean Phares, won the decision, and Charles Campbell won first prize of 25 dollars. Fred Lawson won second prize of 15 dollars. He and Louise Taggart composed the affirmative team. Mr. Bradford, Mr. Ramsey and Miss Jones acted as judges.

Every spring Drs. T. M. Ahlquist and R. E. Ahlquist give prize money to the best debaters in school.

Group B debaters were chosen by tryouts in April and the debate was late in May.

BOYS' FEDERATION EXECUTIVE COUNCIL

The executive council of the Boys' Federation is made up of the officers and representatives elected by the boys of the school. Practically all business of the Federation is transacted through the executive council under the supervision of the faculty director. The boys who act as heads of the various departments are appointed by the council.

GIRLS' LEAGUE CENTRAL COUNCIL

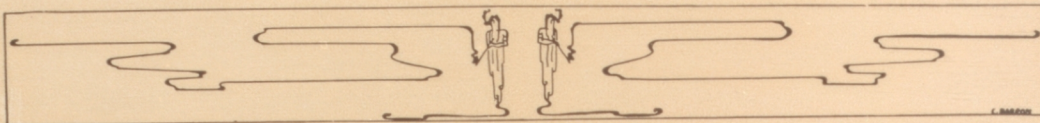

The Central council of the Girls' League was organized in September, 1918. It is composed of the officers of the League; the chairmen of the five departments, entertainment, vocational, social service, personal efficiency and clerical; eight representatives of the room representatives; chairmen of the big sisters, big cousins and dress standards committees; girl members of the Student Conduct board; and the faculty advisors.

The duty of the council is to transact all business of the League, except that which, under counsel of the girls' advisor, it is deemed expedient to submit to the vote of the entire membership; to coordinate the work of the departments and interpret their functions; and to pass on all expenditures.

TRAFFIC SQUAD

In 1920 under the direction of Mr. Bradford, the North Central Traffic squad was organized to regulate the traffic of the school. Eight "cops" besides the officers, a commissioner, a captain, and one lieutenant composed the squad. The work was done very efficiently and the force has steadily grown.

The traffic squad keeps order in the halls between periods and after 8:15 in the morning.

The members take tickets at pay convocations and stop the rush of the students on their way to convocations.

At every Pow Wow the traffic force patrols the halls to see that there are no disturbances. They take and punch "wamps" and keep general order throughout the school. At every important or crowded place there is at least one officer. The money banks are guarded by two officers and the halls are patrolled.

ART CLUB

The promotion of interest in art throughout North Central is the purpose of the Art club. Through lectures, exhibits and organized study, this organization aids the members in a better appreciation of art and artists.

The club was organized by Bessie Curtis, who was the first president. Miss Lillian Stowell was the first faculty director. Miss Ashley succeeded Miss Stowell in becoming faculty director. All students interested in art have the privilege of becoming a member. Those who wish to join must have a "C" or better in art.

RADIO CLUB

In 1921 a group of enthusiastic boys who were interested in radio organized for the purpose of promoting a general interest along radio lines.

Since that time the Radio club has been busy continually in undertaking and developing many radio projects. Under the direction of A. L. Smith the club installed a spark transmitter and a great deal of radio exchange was carried on under the call letters of 7YL.

Through the efforts of the Radio club the name of North Central is now heard throughout the west, in many parts of the east and in Canada. This has been made possible by the construction and operation of a complete radio-casting set. Many communications are received daily from all parts of Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana and British Columbia stating that programs have been heard from KFIO. These reports state that the quality of the programs is good and that they are enjoyed by the listeners.

DELTA CLUB

Organized in 1914 as a service organization, the Delta club has taken a prominent part in all school affairs ever since. Until four years ago the Delts were affiliated with the Y. M. C. A., but their relations with this organization were broken at that time.

The biggest activity of the club is their annual Hi-Jinx, a variety vaudeville show presented every spring. The junior Hi-Jinx is put on at the Pow Wow in the fall.

All the Delts have been prominent in some line of extracurricular activity as this is one of the main requirements for admittance to the club.

MASQUE CLUB

The Masque club was formed as a literary society in May, 1910. In 1911, because of the joint high school, no clubs were recognized and the Masque club met at the homes of the members under the name of the Fortnightly club. During the year of 1912, the members decided to take up the dramatic line as well as the literary. It was then that the name, Masque, was adopted.

In April, 1927, a play was presented for the benefit of the playfield. Two one-act plays were given in December.

The membership of the club is limited to thirty, fifteen boys and fifteen girls. The object is to encourage literary, dramatic, vocal and dancing talent.

The club's program for the month is as follows: two readings of plays, one report on some dramatic event, and one miscellaneous program.

S. P. Q. R.

In 1914 the S. P. Q. R. was organized by Miss Evans for the purpose of banding together students interested in the study of Latin and Roman history.

At each meeting of the club, reports on some customs or peculiar habits of the Latin people are given by the members. The S. P. Q. R. has sponsored many Latin plays and has broadcast twice over the school radio station.

The letters S. P. Q. R. stand for the Latin words senatus populusque Romanus which means the senate and the Roman people.

SCRIPTORIANS

In 1923 a few girls who belonged to an honorary English club, organized with Miss Clarke's assistance, a new literary society for girls and boys and called it the "Scriptorians." Since that time it has been an active organization.

The club is made up of students particularly interested and talented along literary lines. The society has meetings twice a month at which original short stories, poems and essays are read. Also various points of literary work are studied under the direction of Miss Clarke and Miss Bacon, directors.

Four semester grades of "B" or better are required for admittance to the club. Candidates for membership must also write an original short story, poem or essay to be considered by a committee of judges who choose the best ten or twelve for members in the club.

MATHEMATICS CLUB

In the spring of 1913 the Mathematics club of North Central was formed to interest students in mathematical subjects. This club sponsors a geometry contest every spring and an algebra contest in the fall. The winners in these contests are given silver loving cups and their names are engraved on the plaque in the trophy case.

One must acquire three B's or better in mathematics as well as an interest in the subject to be eligible for the club.

Each year the Lewis and Clark Math club and the North Central Math club alternate in entertaining each other.

This semester the club presented the play "Solving an Equation by the Judicial Process" for the mathematical section of the Inland Empire Teachers' association. The play is adapted from one of Stephen Leacock's stories. It is through the efforts and patience of Miss Burnham, director, that the club is successful in its activities.

CATTONIAN CLUB

The girls of North Central were interested in debating. In 1926 a club was organized for the interest of those willing to partake in forensics, and Katherine Keisling as leader of the movement was the first president.

It was decided that the club be named for Mrs. Catt, hence the name "Cattonian."

Twenty-five girls are members and each takes an active part in the projects put over by the group. During the year, each girl appears on the program either in a debate, or gives some phase of parliamentary law. Thus the meetings are made instructive. Twice a semester the girls gather for a social meeting; one of these is the initiation.

Twice the News subscription campaign has been handled successfully by the girls of this club.

GRUB STREET

Grub Street, the boys' literary society, was formed from the Indian club in 1927. A constitution of an older organization of the same name was adopted by the charter members, and a new career of literary activity was mapped out. Members are appointed by the president to compose sketches, essays or poems for every social meeting.

The name of the club was taken from a famous old street in the London slums called Grub Street, where many of England's best authors lived at one time, and where much of the world's best literature has been written.

Club membership is limited to twenty. The chief requirements are that the applicants be neither a Senior A nor a 9B, and that a satisfactory original essay, short story or poem, judged by a committee of members, be submitted in the tryouts which are held once every semester.

The organization takes part in many different activities, the chief one being the annual banquet of the associated high school literary clubs of the city.

VOX PUELLARUM

Vox Puellarum, the voice of the girls, was organized in 1912 to promote literary interests in North Central and to assist all movements of interest to the girls.

For the first four years of its existence, the club cooperated with the Delts in putting on the annual Delta-Vox Hi-Jinx. In 1927, the custom of staging a vaudeville performance known as the Vox Variety Vodvil was continued.

Each year during the holiday season the members furnish a needy family with food and clothing. Each semester the club awards ten dollars to the senior A girl who has been outstanding in her class in school, personality and obstacles overcome.

At all times the Vox has endeavored to fulfill the highest standards of womanhood.

La Tertulia, a Spanish word meaning social gathering, is a Spanish club which was organized by Miss Edith Broomhall in 1918. Its aim is to encourage the study and use of Spanish among the students.

During the past semester, the club members

Another new plan was tried out this spring—that of playing real Spanish games at the meetings. So far this has proved quite delightful.

FRENCH CLUB

The French club was organized in 1913, and Sans Souci, which literally means "without care," was adopted as the official name for the club.

The purpose of the Sans Souci is to develop a knowledge of the French nation as a political and intellectual force in the world; and that such men as A. Dumas, Pasteur, Lavosier, Georges Sand and Hugo may live forever in the minds of not only those members who are imbued with the hope of some day becoming a savant in science or literature. To promote further interest about France, a new custom, answering the roll call by giving a report on some current French topic, has been introduced into the club.

Sans Souci has only one business meeting a month and two social meetings a semester. Only those students who have had two semesters of French and who have attained satisfactory scholastic standings are admitted to the club.

This year the French club has presented two plays at its regular business meetings. One play, given March 1, was "La Charlatan" or, in English, "The Quack Doctor." At the April 3 meeting a French version of Cinderella was presented. The members of all French classes were invited.

The Golf club is also trying to get letters for inter-school competition the same as the schools on the coast. This would help to promote golf in the high schools.

SENIOR B CLASS

Last semester Mr. Ecker and Neil McLain conceived the idea of starting an aviation club in North Central to promote interest in aeronautics. They took the names of the boys in school who were interested in aviation and approached Mr. Kennedy with their plan. He immediately gave his approval and said that the possibilities for such a club were unlimited.

The club was organized and a constitution was drawn up and passed.

Although the club is in its infancy, many things have been started. Classes in aeronautics are held at club meetings each Thursday night and practical model building is well under way. Herbert Slate has completed and flown several of his models.

ATHLETIC BOARD

The athletic board is an organization which consists of the principal, vice principal, girls' athletic director, boys' athletic director, captain, managers and coaches of all the teams. Formerly the captain, manager and coach remained as members of the board only as long as their particular sport was in season, but now they are active members all year.

The purpose of the board is to name the ones to whom letters are to be awarded. A certain amount of playing in games merits football, baseball, basketball, tennis and swimming awards.

The student conduct board is an organization whose object is to govern the conduct of students in the library, during convocations and in the halls of North Central while school is in session.

The membership is limited to five members: Library commissioner, convocation commissioner, traffic commissioner, secretary and president. These offices are filled by students appointed by the chairman of the Associated Student councils, the president of the Girls' League, the president of the Boys' Federation, in consultation with the faculty advisors of the organization and with the approval of the associated councils.

This board passes sentence on offenders of the school conduct rules. They meet every Monday morning before school in room 116.

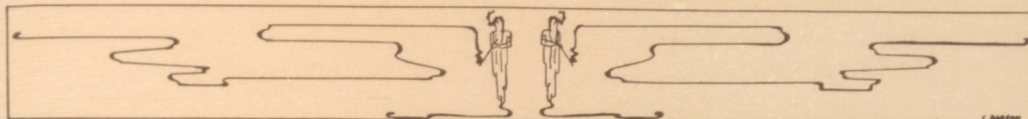

Any student who wishes to appeal his case for disorderly conduct before the board may do so at any of these meetings. The duties also consists of passing regulations on the student conduct in the library, in convocations, in the halls and fix penalties on them. They pass rules relative to their own procedure and approve the appointments or the removals by the commissioners or their assistants and deputies.

Anyone accused is given a chance to tell his story to the board and if they thing he has been unjustly accused he will be excused. If he is guilty, a sentence is given.

Student supervision of good conduct has been found exceedingly successful in North Central and it is the duty of the students to help as much as possible toward the success of student government.

THE GIRLS' LEAGUE

The Girls' League has completed another successful year. The standard dress, adopted last fall, has proved a wonderful success. Two surveys, one taken at the beginning of the year and another at the end, showed that 85 to 90 per cent of the girl cooperated. These surveys were conducted by the room representatives who are instrumental in helping the League carry out its important work. The idea of appropriateness of good dress was reflected by the reduction of high heels and excessive use of cosmetics. Recently it was voted to have an exemption day next year.

Last spring the League put out vines and two spruce trees around the school and intend to do this each year to beautify the grounds. This semester the organization gave $200 to the Playfield association. A new clock, bulletin boards, flowers and curtains have been added to the attractiveness of the Girls' League office. This year the League sent two representatives to the second annual high school convention at Pullman. Those represented the girls were Genevieve Kestler and Ruth McKenney.

A new department of the League organized last fall is the clerical department which takes over all the checking in the study halls and collects slips in the library. Last Christmas the social service department gave gifts, food and an excellent program at the Spokane Children's home. The vocational department conducted several interesting special talks for the girls this semester. Among the speakers were Miss Harriet Nelson, Bert'l Studio, who talked on photography as a profession; Mrs. Mildred Christian, public stenographer in the Paulsen building, who spoke on stenography; and Senator Reba Hurn, senator to Olympia for the state of Washington, who spoke on legislature. The entertainment department has furnished several original skits for the different parties held during the year. In the personal efficiency department the large number of girls, particularly interested in sports, showed up well in all their contests.

SPOKANE'S UNPRINTED HISTORY

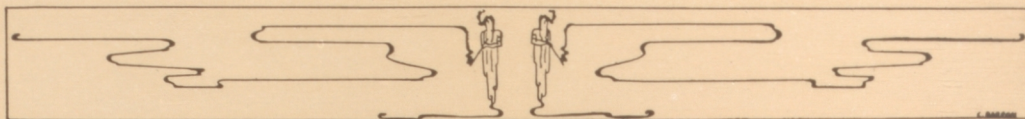

THIRD PRIZE STORY
By Aurelia Benedict

In about the year 1875, Spokane was an obscure little town with a scanty population of white people and a few families located along the highways to Walla Walla and Coeur d' Alene. All through the surrounding mountains and valleys there was a large number of hostile Indians. To the east, great bands of Sioux leisurely roamed the country, attentively watching for opportunities to annoy the settlers. Within the Spokane Valley and further south, another western tribe hunted, trapped, and robbed while they surlily watched the whites destroying vast hunting grounds and steadily though slowly building up a civilization previously unknown to the Indians.

At this time there were no railroads built within the bounds of Washington, but the Northern Pacific was busily engaged in grading a road bed through Montana. This work required strong, durable draft horses, so a great many beautiful animals were sent from the eastern states. Because of these circumstances, the wily Indians were able to form a plan by which they gained three important results. With stealthy cunning they stole the horses from the traders and then drove them on to Montana where they received an immense sum of money in return for their plunder. Besides, it not only slackened and made more difficult the building of the railroad, but it frightened the white people to such an extent that they were afraid to make the long journey from the East to the West.

It was at this period in the history of the West that Frank McCarthy and his father came from California to the Spokane Valley.

Frank was a tall, lean, sun-browned young man with a shock of curly black hair and pleasant blue eyes. His father was an exact opposite in stature. His shoulders were broad and muscular. Although he was forty-five years old, his hair was but slightly gray at the temples.

These men brought with them only two horses. One was merely an Indian pony but the other was a beautiful, coal-black mare of the Black Hawk breed. Only a few days had elapsed after their arrival in town when Frank discovered Chief Big Ears, chief of a western tribe, watching the mare with half closed eyes. Frank had already learned that the Chief was a well known horse thief, and that neither he nor any other of the Indians of that district could be trusted around horses. Later Frank described the incident to his father, and they decided that they would have to take turns picketing the horses over night somewhere out on the prairie as they would not dare to leave them to feed without protection.

The next night it was Frank's turn to picket the horses. He located a short distance east of the present site of the fairgrounds. Seemingly the earth was wrapped in a dark blanket. The stars twinkled brilliantly, but the moon cast only a faint glow. Frank picketed the horses and then rolled up in his blankets with his dog curled at his side.

It was about two o'clock when he was suddenly aroused by a low growl from his dog. He seized the dog's muzzle and then turned to look toward the horses. Frank smothered an exclamation and took a tighter grip on his gun. Silhouetted against the sky was a man, an Indian, with eager hands outstretched to the frightened mare. As the Indian moved a little closer to the horse, he saw who it was, Chief Big Ears! Undoubtedly he had come to steal the mare. Frank pondered. What should he do? Perhaps if he fired a shot the Chief would become frightened and leave. He lifted his gun a few inches from the ground and pulled the trigger. Instead of running, the Indian jerked erect then limply collapsed. Frank started. Surely he had not killed the Indian. He had not aimed. But the Chief remained motionless. Frank began to worry. Even if he had only wounded the man, his life would be in constant danger thereafter, for the Chief would be sure to get revenge. But what if the thief were dead. Frank shivered and the cold sweat came out on his body. Not only would the Indians burn him to the stake, but they would undoubtedly massacre all the white people in that section of the country. He knew that in that case he could not tell his own father for as an honorable man he would see it was his duty to give up his son to safeguard the lives of the rest of the settlers.

An hour of this mental agony passed. The first signs of dawn were showing in the east. Frank decided he must do something before daylight. Slowly he began to creep towards the Indian. The Chief never moved a muscle. Within a few feet of the man, Frank cautiously rose to his knees and holding his rifle in readiness with his right hand, he reached out and touched the Indian. All was still. He stood up and with one foot rolled the body over. A low sob escaped his lips as he turned away. The Indian's chest was covered with blood from a bullet hole just above the heart.

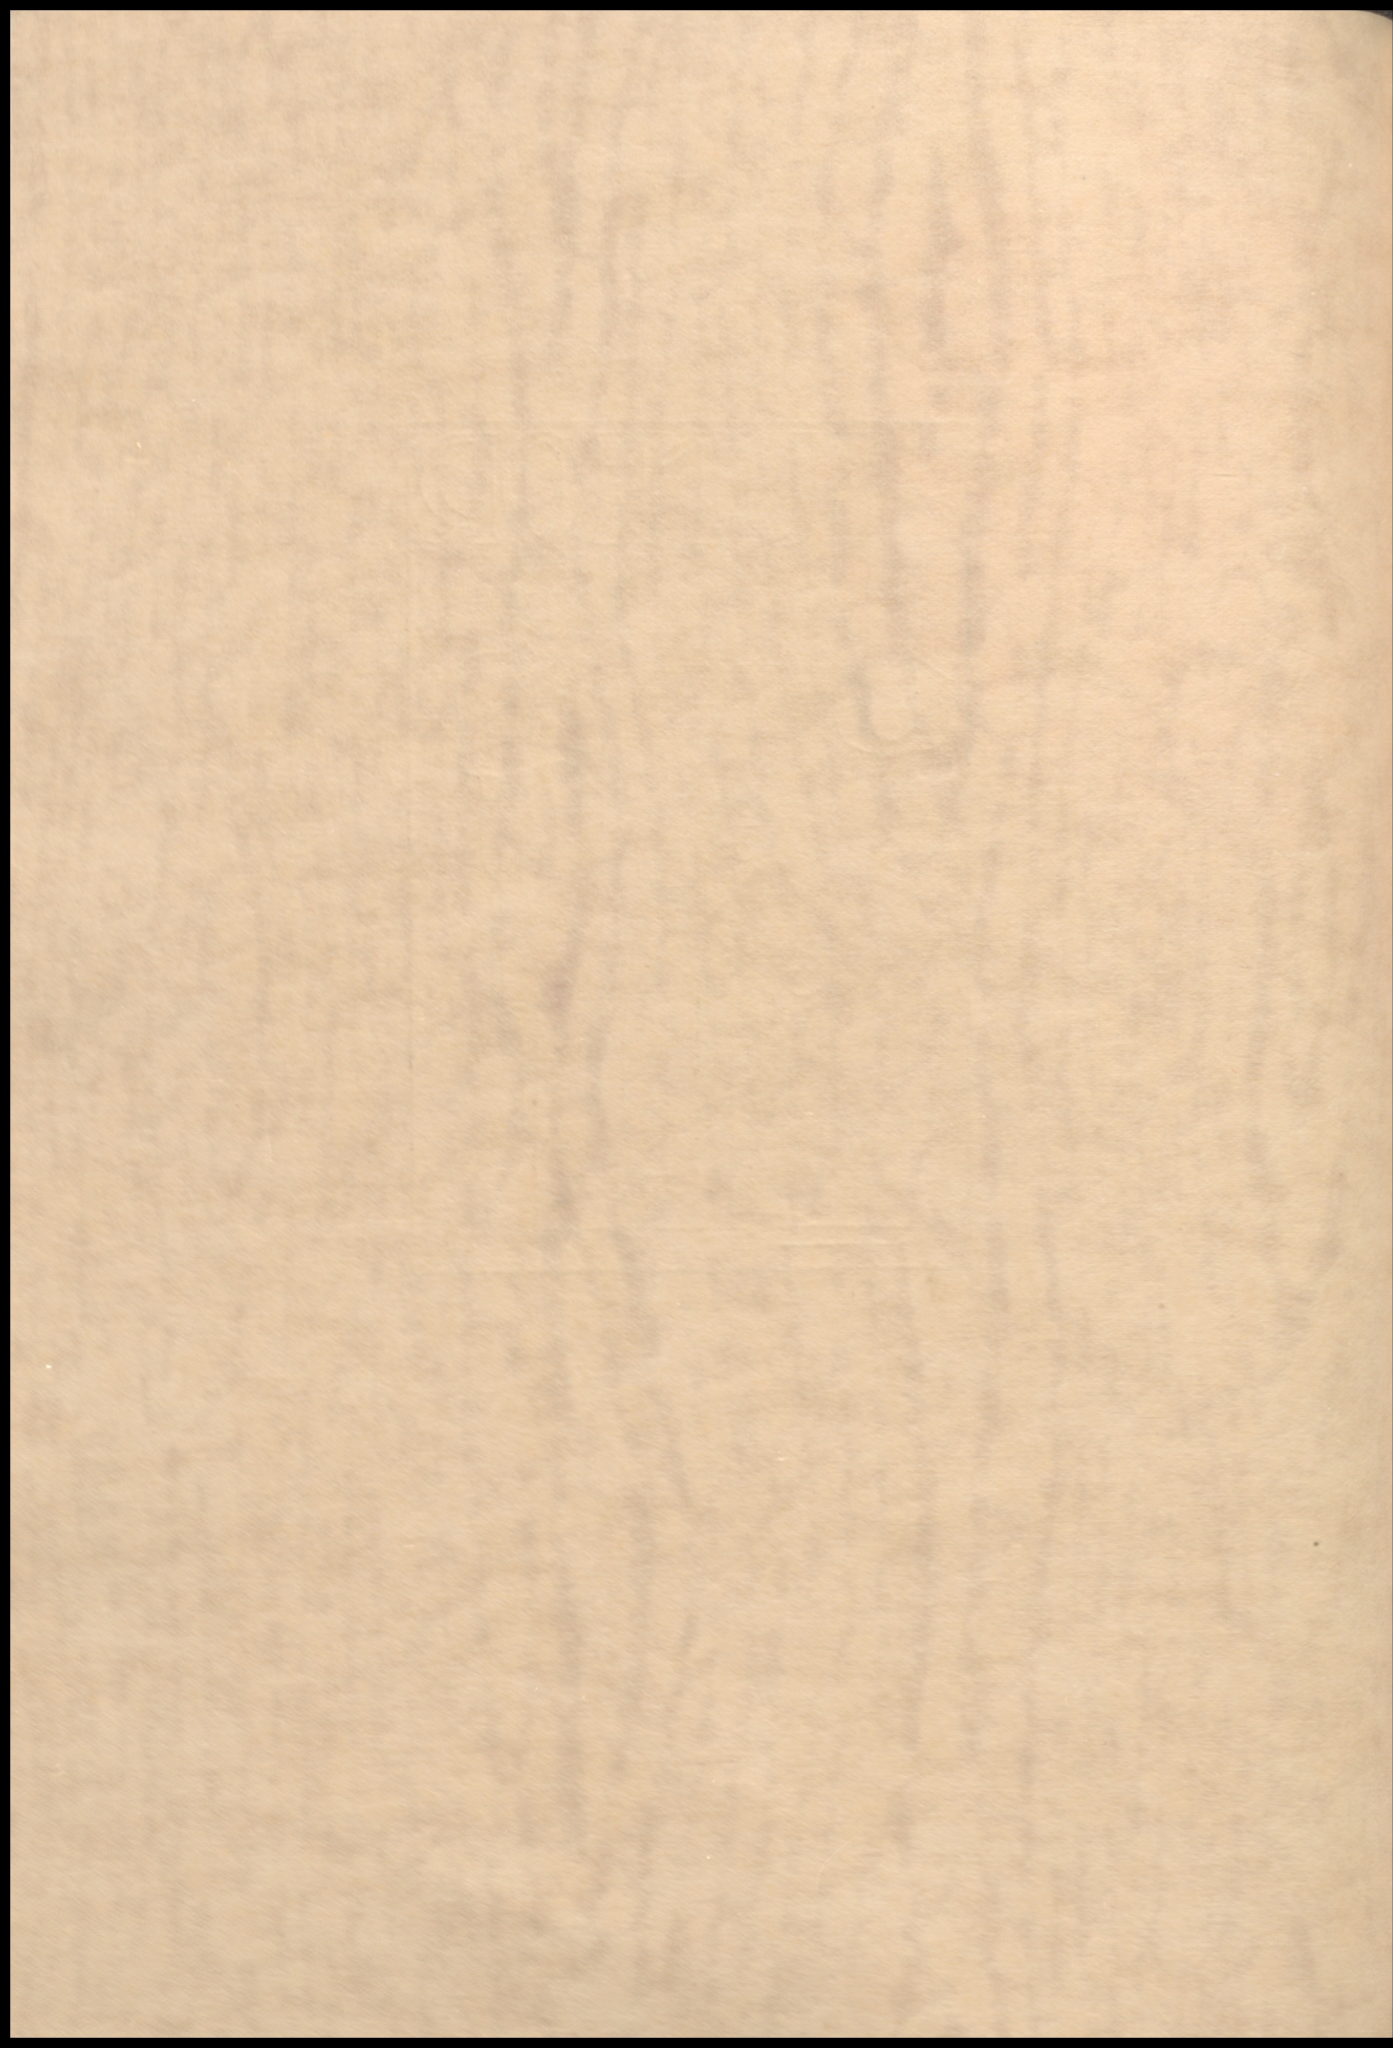

Working quickly, Frank rolled up his bedding and packed it on the pony; then pulling up the stakes, he mounted the mare and turned her to the north. He had made his plans as he worked. He would strike out north until he reached a ford in the river with which he was familiar. After crossing to the other side, he planned to picket his horses and make his bed within good view of the northern highway leading into Spokane. All the early morning travelers would see him there, and believing that his quarters for the night had been there would never think of casting suspicion upon him.

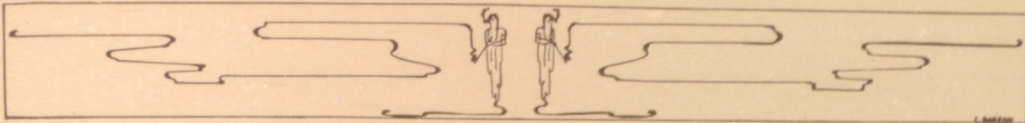

By the time the sun had begun to cast its rays over the horizon, Frank had settled at his new location and was trying to get some more sleep. However, he lay awake for a long time while his thoughts dwelt upon his peril. He was not sure that his plan for escape would be successful, but exhausted after the night's excitement he finally dropped off into a restless sleep.

He did not break up his camp until about ten o'clock. When he reached town he was stunned to find that Chief Big Ears body had

THE HAVERMALE JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL

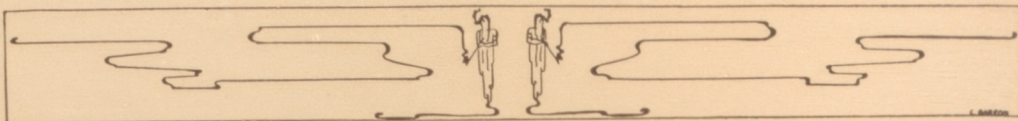

Havermale Junior high school takes its name from one of Spokane's early citizens, the Reverend S. G. Havermale. This Spokane pioneer arrived in the fall of 1875 and entered a claim on the land which is now known as Havermale's Addition. During the year 1876 and '77 he held school for the white children of the community, closing the term in March, '77. It seems highly fitting that a man who held this school in Spokane's infancy should be honored in the naming of this new school which stands for the very latest and best, both in physical construction and in educational methods applied. At the same time we feel that the school is honored in being allowed to bear the name of the man who held school under such extreme difficulties.

From the point of construction, this building has no superior in the city of Spokane. Concrete floors and pillars, brick walls, metal lath, metal window frames, Terraza window sills, and separate heating plant, all go to make the building fireproof. In the classrooms concrete floors are overlaid with maple, and in the halls with tile. Steel stairways with Terraza steps are both fireproof and foolproof. The Uni-vent heating system with auxiliary radiation carries fresh air of proper temperature throughout the building. The system operates on a thermostatic control. Lavatories are equipped with both permanent and sanitary fixtures. Shower rooms for both boys and girls have marble installation which could not be improved upon either for permanence, sanitation, or beauty. All classrooms have outdoor light that has so far proved itself sufficient in all but the very darkest of days. For use in time of emergencies, each room has four standard electric lights that guarantee sufficient light. Standard home economics, manual arts, art, and music rooms are provided. At present the gymnasium is also being used as auditorium and cafeteria, and is serving well in this capacity during the emergency period. Construction of the proposed auditorium and cafeteria will make possible a much more extensive physical education, musical, and forensic program than can now be carried on. Likewise the construction of the east wing, plans for which have already been drawn, will enable the school to approach more nearly a standard Junior high organization. As it now stands, it is able to serve approximately one-half of the pupils it would serve if the standard seventh, eighth, and ninth grade organizations were in force.

Equipment installed is of the type consistent with the class of building construction.

"THE TEMPEST", HAVERMALE

The "Tempest" without question was the most successful and most elaborate dramatic production of the year. Four Departments contributed to this production: the dramatic, stage construction, manual training, and the physical training department. The play was supervised by Miss Lewis and was put over successfully because of her fine direction and the cooperation of the students who took part. The play was a dream by Shakespeare with an interesting plot. The story was centered around Prospero, a magician and an exiled duke, who as the play opened caused a tempest by his magic. This tempest brings to Prospero's desert inland the duke who had formally usurped his throne. After a day of marvels, Prospero regains his Dukedom and sails away to Italy.

In the play there were five dancers, who played the parts of fairies under the rule of Prospero. Their dancing added beauty to the play.

The cast was as follows: Alonso, Kenneth Endicott; Sebastian, Francis O' Malley; Prospero, John Hackett; Antonia, George Bafus; Ferdinand, Scott Chatterton; Gonzalo, Elmer Carpenter; Caliban, Antonette Costello; Trinculo, Kathryn Brenton; Stephano, Jean King; Miranda, Nessie Robertson. The dancers were: Ariel, Dorothy Loquvam; Mary Carter; Juno, Dorothy Breedon.

Nymphs and Reapers were taken from the Folk Dancing club.

Dorothy Loquvam as Ariel was a very graceful spright. Her actions and voice combined to give a delightful voice of a fairy and the audience was pleased with her from her first appearance.

John Hackett played the lead male role of Prospero and gained praise for the fine acting of his part. His daughter Miranda was interpreted by Nessie Robertson who also played her part very well.

Both parts were difficult to characterize and they showed that much time and study had been spent on them.

The costuming and all the other effects that add to a play were very lovely.

HAVERMALE STAGE CONSTRUCTION CLUB

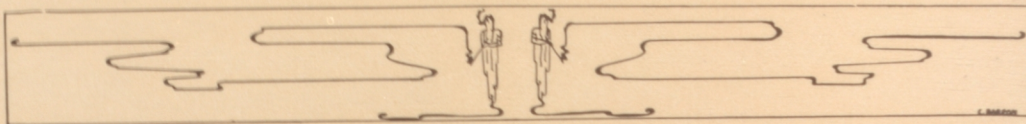

Starting with a bare platform twenty feet long by fifteen feet deep backed up against a brick wall, the Stage Construction club, under the direction of Miss Mabel Davidson, developed as neat a little stage as one could desire. Two complete sets of scenery, one indoor and one outdoor, of permanent type have been built and decorated. In addition there is a gray curtain set for ordinary purposes.

Overhead framework, partially installed by workmen of District 81, was completed by the club, pulleys and ropes installed for nine drops with space for three more, and a fly gallery built at the eleven foot level.

In addition to construction activities members of the club have assumed responsibility for care of the stage at all times.

Members of the club are: Miss Mabel Davidson, Director, Harry White, Roy Speakes, Russell Shepherd, Harold Cady, Art Achre, Ben Avey, Florence Johnson, Eleanor Allgaier, Marjorie Carroll, Beryl Monfort, Helen Kresel, Virginia Carroll, Mary Elizabeth Baldwin, Rose Fleming, Lucile Bates, Ruth Ellerson, Jane Stone, Merle Robinson, Mona Sheehan, Jeanne Markert, Clara West and Erees Owens.

Havermale's first athletic year proved to be very successful. During the year '28-'29, Havermale won every game, except one, that was played with Libby.

Three soccer games were played with the south-side school. Havermale won all three games without allowing the Libby players to score. Ned Graves, Ed Anderson, Stanley Greenough, Melvin Nolan, Bob Peterson, Leslie Wade, Harry West, Howard Parker, Elmer Carpenter, Earl Neura, and Tom Gonyea were the members of this successful team. Gonyea, as captain, was responsible for the fine team work and sportsmanship of the players. The Havermale-Libby summary is as follows:

HAVERMALE BASKETBALL TEAM

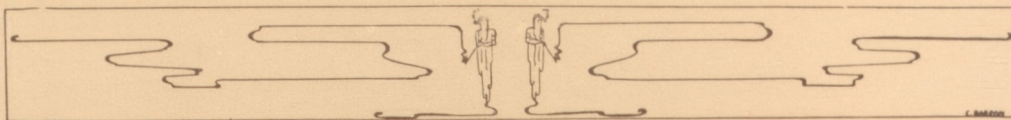

In basketball the Papooses lost only one game to Libby and thus added another scalp to the Havermale belt.

Boys who played on the team and the number of points scored by each is as follows: Captain Tom Gonyea-150, Earl Neuru-102, Bob Boyd-72, Fred Rich-45, Phil Welch-26, Francis O'Malley-4, Leslie Wade-1, and Ralph Mills-1.

Sport Year 1928-1929

FOOTBALL

North Central's new coach, "Brick" Johnson, developed last fall the finest team ever to play for the Red and Black. Eight games were played and the Indians were scored on once, that score by a team they beat 73 to 6. The Indians made 324 points to their opponents 6.

CROSS COUNTRY

Coach Taylor's runners were defeated by the Tigers for the first time in three years. The score was close and a dispute was held over ninth and tenth places. The judges, however, decided in favor of Lewis and Clark. This gave them the meet by a 27 to 28 score, the lowest number of points winning. Bob Johnson and Francis Lufkin are the only lettermen to come back next fall.

BASKETBALL

Coach Reese's team ended a successful basketball season by placing second at the state tournament in Seattle. Throughout the season they played twenty games, winning sixteen and losing four.

Two North Central players, Clarence Graham and Roland Johnson, were chosen for the all-state team of Bobby Morris, tournament referee. Graham was appointed captain. Graham was also chosen as a member of the all-time all-star team, this team being made up of players from the other tournaments held in previous years.

SWIMMING

North Central lost the annual meet to Lewis and Clark by a small score. Near the end of the meet the two teams were tied with 27 points each and only the relay to be swum. The Southsiders won this by a narrow margin.

Bob Gray, backstroke star from North Central bettered the city record by 3.9 seconds. The new time for this distance was 1:16.

TRACK

Coach Taylor led an unexperienced track team through a fairly successful season, losing one and winning one of the dual meets. The Indians won from Gonzaga by a 68 to 54 score and lost to Lewis and Clark by a 70 to 50 score.

Basketball

North Central's basketball team climaxed a highly successful season by winning second at the state tournament at Seattle, after easily defeating Lewis and Clark, Hillyard and Gonzaga in straight games to earn the city championship.

At the first basketball practice, Monday, December 3, forty candidates turned out. Seven of these were lettermen. They were: Roland Johnson, Pete Graham, Horton Herman, Francis Lufkin, Bill Shaw, Mentor Dahlen, Phil Schmitt and Dan Dech. Of these, Johnson, Herman and Graham were members of last year's championship team. Dahlen and Dech earned their letters two years ago, but did not turn out last year.

At the start of the season two practice games were played, one with the S. A. C. and the other with the Spokane college quintet. There was no score kept at either of these games, as the games were frequently stopped to show some player how to play better.

IN IDAHO AND MONTANA

During Christmas vacation the basketball team won four easy games on a trip through northern Idaho and Montana. With Coach Reese on this trip went Johnny McCallum, Phil Schmitt, Francis Lufkin, Horton Herman, Leonard Foster, Roland Johnson, Bill Shaw, Mentor Dahlen and Pete Graham. J. Wesley Taylor accompanied the team as trainer.

Bonniers Ferry, the first team played, fell an easy victim to North Central's basketball team by a score of 46 to 17. In the next game, with Whitefish, the effect of the trip showed on the boys and they got off to a slow start. Whitefish piled up a lead and held all through the first half. The rest at the half strengthened the Indians, however, and they came back strong in the second half to amass a total of 11 points to win 24 to 15. The second game with Whitefish, the next day, was much easier, and the team came out on top 36 to 11.

Flathead was the last team to fall a victim to the boys in red and black. The final score was 58 to 24. Graham and Herman were the individual stars.

W. S. C. FROSH

Saturday, January 5, the team journeyed to Pullman where they lost the first game of the season to the W. S. C. frosh in a close, hard-fought battle. The frosh quintet was coached by none other than our former mentor, Jack Friel. All through the game the contest was in doubt, and it was not until the gun sounded that the freshmen were sure of their 19 to 16 victory.

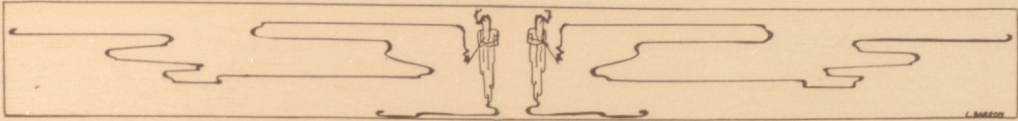

North Central opened the race for the city basketball championship with an easy win over the Gonzaga Bullpups. In the first half the losers failed to sink a single field goal and the score at the end of the half was 17 to 2. The second half was a much harder battle with a great deal of rough and tumble. Johnson was the only one who seemed able to hit the basket with any kind of regularity for N. C. Then game ended with the score 28 to 10.

CITY FIGHT

Our traditional rivals, Lewis and Clark, fell before the onslaught of the team the next Thursday. The score at the quarter was four all. In the second quarter, the Indians hit their stride to gain 14 points to the Tigers' four. The second half simply presented more time for our boys to pile up an even larger lead. The game ended 36 to 11.

Hillyard, on the next Tuesday, lost to us by the overwhelming score of 4 to 37. Outside of the first quarter, which was fairly exciting, the game was only one score after another for the Indians. Hillyard scored only one point in the second half.

In the second game with Lewis and Clark, the next Thursday, the N. C. quintet encountered much stiffer competition. At the quarter the enemy was leading, but at half time our team forged ahead to a one point lead. The third and fourth quarters served to increase this lead until the game ended 19 to 13.

The score of the second encounter with the Bullpups was 42 to 12. The Gonzaga boys failed to score once in the first half and the score was 16 to 0 then.

Hillyard was hopelessly outclassed in the second game with the Indians and went down to a 34 to 7 defeat.

By displaying an excellent brand of basketball the warriors experienced little difficulty in defeating the Tigers in the third and last game of the series, thus clinching the city championship. The score was 25 to 13. This meant that the team would go to Seattle to defend their 1928 state championship.

Horton Herman led in the scoring in the city series with 61 points. Roland Johnson was second and Aukett of L. C. was third.

Cheney high school, runners-up in the state championship at Seattle last year, gave the Indians a hard battle in a game that the warriors won 23 to 19. Cheney proved to put up the stiffest competition that the red and black boys had met yet.

Monday, February 18, a practice game was played with the DeMolay quintet. The team won 33 to 16.

Jack Friel's W. S. C. freshmen lost their first game of the season to the N. C. team in a return game the next Thursday. The 40 to 23 score more than made up for the defeat that the Indians had suffered at the hands of the frosh earlier in the season. This was the best game that the team played all year.

Two games were lost in Moscow to the Moscow high school quintet and the University of Idaho frosh team on Friday and Saturday, March 1 and 2. These were the second and third defeats that the Indians had suffered so far in the season. Friday the high school team defeated the boys 21 to 16 and Saturday the frosh came out in the lead of the 28 to 26 score. These were the last games played until the state tournament.

STATE TOURNAMENT

Although they failed to win the state tournament, the team showed their real N. C. spirit by fighting until the gun fired in the game with Olympia. In the last minute or two the boys made six points to help their score.

Blaine, the first opponent, was touted to be a strong contender for the championship, but they fell an easy victim to the fast game of the Indians. Johnson was the only one who seemed able to hit the basket, but the close guarding of the others kept the Blaine men off. The final score was 33 to 15. The Blaine game was the best contest the team played at the tournament.

In the next game, with Clarkston, the warriors seemed a little tired from the previous son, Shaw and Graham scoring regularly in the day and got off to a slow start, but with Johnson second half the team pulled away to gain their 26 to 16 lead when the game ended.

Mount Vernon put up a real fight in the semi-finals from start to finish. The game was featured with close guarding on both sides. The game ended 19 to 10 in the Indians' favor.

With a team composed of boys who had been strong contenders at the state tournament for the last three years, the Olympia quintet defeated the Indians 26 to 17 after a spirited battle. Olympia was "on," while N. C., with the exception of Johnson, seemed unable to hit the basket. In the last minute the Indians flashed back into their old form and scored six points, but it was too late.

Roland Johnson, high point man at the tournament, received the honor of placing as center on the mythical all-state team. Pete Graham not only was given a guard position on the all-state team, but also was given a position on the all-state, all-time team chosen by Bobby Morris.

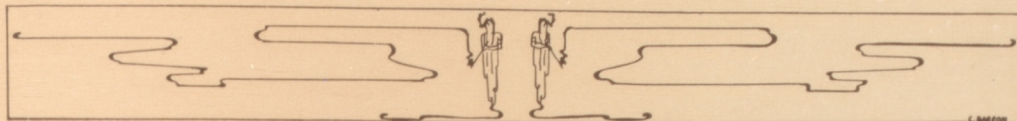

TENNIS

Fifty-five boys responded to the first call for tennis practice this spring. Of this number only ten survived the elimination tournament.

Boys on the team and their relative standings are as follows: Clifford Hawkins, Roland Johnson, Winton Welch, Virgil Skone, Lloyd Peterson, Robert Crosby, Richard Ireland, Curtis Scott, Richard Hickey and Clayton Shea.

According to Coach Guy Barnes, "We have a very good tennis team this year. The fellows have been working and training for a long time and will undoubtedly make a good showing against Lewis and Clark."

Two meets have been played, in which the

N. C. team proved to be quite superior. West Valley was beaten six out of seven games, and Otis Orchard was beaten five out of seven games.

Following is the results of the Otis Orchards match:

Skone (N. C.) beat Canfield (O.) 6-2, 3-6, 6-3.

Ireland (N. C.) beat Ulowetz (O.) 6-2, 8-6.

Peterson (N. C.) beat Corrigan (O.) 6-3, 6-4.

Hickey (N. C.) beat Stellmon (O.) 6-2, 6-0.

BOYS' DOUBLES

Johnson and Hawkins (N. C.) beat Corrigan and Ulowetz (O.) 6-2, 6-3.

GIRLS' DOUBLES

Greene and Strong (O.) beat Thompson and Dittebrandt (N. C.) 6-1, 6-0.

MIXED DOUBLES

Stellmon and Strong (O.) beat Welch and Thompson (N. C.) 2-6, 6-4, 6-1.

Results of the West Valley meet are as follows:

Kelley (N. C.) won from Ramsey (W. V.) 6-1, 6-0; Johnson (N. C.) won from Stout (W. V.) 6-5, 6-0; Hawkins (N. C.) won from Eagle (W. V.) 6-3, 11-9; Logan (W. V.) won from Skone (N. C.) 6-3, 6-3; Hickey (N. C.) won from Hobbs (W. V.) 6-1, 6-1.

DOUBLES

Scott and Peterson (N. C.) won from Stout and Hobbs (W. V.) 6-2, 3-6, 6-3; Crosby and Welsh (N. C.) won from Eagle and Logan (W. V.) 4-6, 6-3, 6-2.

With only three lettermen, Bill Shaw, Jack Bullivant and Charles Hauter, back for swimming, the outlook for a championship team looked very dark.

As coach Johnson was busy with football, Bill Shaw took charge of the squad. Practices started soon after the beginning of school last fall. Every Tuesday and Wednesday night practices were held. Light workouts were gone through to condition the squad for later in the season.

Sophomore boys came from behind in the interclass meet to nose out the seniors 27 to 26. Bobby Gray, junior, was high point man with two firsts and a second for 13 counters. The showing of the boys in this meet convinced Coach Johnson that much improvement was necessary for the L. C. meet.

Prospects for a championship team took a further drop when Jack Bullivant quit school and Charles Hauter became ineligible. These two men could always be counted on for two first places.

In the first handicap meet with the girls the boys overcame the large handicaps to win

44 to 31. There were two meets held in order to let more girls participate. In the second half of the meet the girls overcame the handicap of the 44 to 31 score in the first meet to tie the score at 79 all. The boys won the meet, however, on the technicality of winning the relay in the last meet.

After the meets with the girls the boys practiced almost every night for the big meet with the Lewis and Clark. Prospects looked extremely dark with only one letterman as a nucleus.

LEWIS AND CLARK MEET

Four records were smashed as the North Central aquatic stars went down to defeat before the onslaught of the Tiger swimmers. The winners led all through the meet until the last event, the relay, when the score was tied at 27. By cutting one-fifth of a second off the old relay record the Tigers won the relay in the fast time of 1:27:2 seconds. Jack Lambert, class L. C. performer, cut one second off the 40-yard dash to swim it in 20:8 seconds. The Captains of the baseball teams are as follows: Freshman, Elaine Stanaway; Sophomore, Margaret Somerville; Junior, Catherine Dittebrandt; Senior, Inez Castleman.

The manager of the four teams is Naomi Rogers and the chairman, who has charge of giving the girls credit for the Girls' League, is Marjorie Corbit.

Senior girls who are turning out for baseball are: Leamae Cantrell, Inez Castleman, Frances Hawk, Mona Miller, Lily Nelson, Naomi Rogers, Katherine Snow, Helen Stan, Connie Swan, Ruth Walker, Helen Wilson, Marjorie Corbit, Valerie Burns, Esther Miller, Genevieve Kestler, Gertrude Graham, Marguerite Weiler, Mildred Bayley and Genevieve Rebillard.

All girls are invited to turn out for baseball and those who do not will miss a lot of fun under the direction of Miss Waters and Miss Jahreiss.

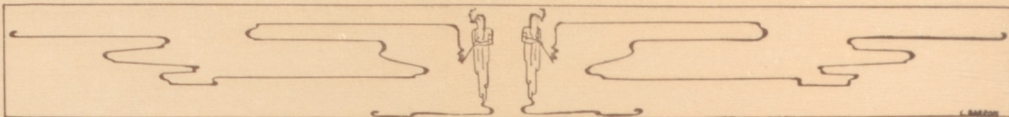

HIKING

All of the girls in North Central have a chance to attend many interesting hikes and those who have not attended any of these hikes have missed lots of good times. The student leader of the hiking this semester is Helen Blackburn. The girls are fortunate in having Miss Miesen as faculty director.

The average hike is ten miles. Some of the favorite hikes are as follows: Indian Canyon, Bowl and Pitcher, Hangman Creek, Dartford, Five Mile, Pleasant Prairie and Down River. They hike from the end of a car line to their destination where they have lunch. About twenty girls attend these hikes which are made every other week if the weather permits.

A girl must hike 100 miles in three consecutive semesters in order to receive her emblem. A star is awarded for every additional 75 miles.

Track

Fifty fellows responded to the first call for track issued by Coach J. Wesley Taylor. Prospects for a successful season were considered very poor as only six lettermen reported. They were: Mentor Dahlen, Phil Schmitt, Oscar Browst, Roy Dieter, Frank Bennett and Leonard Sugrue.

In the annual novice meet a wealth of new material was uncovered. Vernon Hays, a new man from Oregon, made 20 points in winning four first places. Other men who showed up well were: Toulouse, Lanza, Mason, Bennett, Dech, McDonnell, Hendricks and Donovan.

During spring vacation practice was held every day with about 30 fellows turning out. The week before the Gonzaga meet Coach "Brick" Johnson came out and coached the trackmen in the field events. The first meet was on the 19th of April, with Gonzaga doped to win. As usual the Indian team upset the dope bucket and emerged the winner by a 68 to 54 score.

GONZAGA MEET

After the first three events, North Central led by a 17 to 10 score, but with a win in the 220-yard dash Gonzaga made it 18 all. With the next event Gonzaga was leading 25½ to 21½, and when the Indians made a clean sweep of the discus, the score was again knotted. After the high jump North Central went into the lead which they kept.

Dahlen was high point man with 11¼, winning first place in the 100-yard dash and broad jump and a member of the winning relay team. Schmitt and Dieter, of North Central, and Krause of Gonzaga tied for second high honors with 10 each. Schmitt won the shot put and discus, while Dieter led the field to the finish in the mile and half-mile. The Indians clinched the meet when Dahlen jumped 19 feet 11¾ inches to win the broad jump, making the score 63 to 54 with the relay race to be run off. Browst placed second in the pole vault and cleared the bar at 5 feet 4 inches to win the high jump.

Summary:

100-yard dash—Dahlen, N. C., first; McCoy, Gonzaga, second; Kearney, Gonzaga, third; time—10 4-5 seconds.

The Indian team completed a successful season with wins over Gonzaga, Hillyard and Lewis and Clark. From the start of the city series no doubt was expressed as to the final winner.

With seven lettermen back, Coach Reese had a fine nucleus upon which to build another championship team. These men were: Mentor Dahlen, catcher; Albert Kingen and Jerry Wertenberger, pitchers; Francis Lufkin and Bill Gunn, infield; and Everett Henderson and Eugene Kenworthy, outfielders.

Several practice games were played, North Central winning all but one. The first city series game was with Gonzaga, the Indians winning by an 18 to 3 score.

GONZAGA GAME

North Central, playing in top form, started off with four runs in the first inning to Gonzaga's one. They scored regularly throughout the game and made the last inning count for three runs. Wertenberger hurled a fast game, allowing but eight hits and fanning 13.

Henderson and Dahlen led North Central's attack with three hits apiece. Dahlen hit a long drive in the fourth inning which resulted in a home run; Henderson, showing much improvement over last year, a two-bagger, a three-bagger and a home run.

Indians hit the ball at will while Wertenberger seemed to have Gonzaga well in hand. The only time Gonzaga threatened was in the fifth inning when they filled the bases with none out. Wertenberger pulled out of this tight place and fanned the next three batters. North Central showed marked superiority in fielding, having only three errors to the Bullpup's thirteen.

At the end of the first half of the fourth inning Gonzaga had a 3 to 0 lead over North Central. In this inning the Indians unloosed a drive which resulted in 14 runs and won the game, for Gonzaga was held scoreless the rest of the game.

After this hectic inning, the Bullpups tightened up and not an Indian player crossed the plate. Henderson, Gehrke, Carbon, Gunn and Wertenberger did the heavy hitting for North Central.

HILLYARD GAME

North Central lead by a one to nothing score until the seventh inning when Hillyard put two men across the plate for two counters. Hillyard retired the Indians without a bingle in the eighth inning, but in the ninth North Central filled the bases with Dahlen at bat. With two strikes and the game at stake Ment smashed out a home run. When the smoke had cleared away, the Indians had won by a seven to two score. Kingen, Indian pitcher, hurled a wonderful game allowing only three hits.

LEWIS AND CLARK GAME

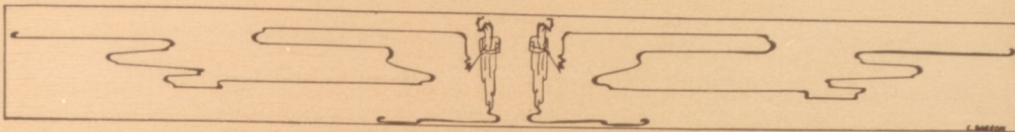

North Central won its first game from Lewis and Clark 12 to 3, making it four straight games won in the city series.

The Indians got away to a four run lead in the first inning and added two in the third, one each in the fourth and sixth, shoved over three in the seventh, and one more in the ninth.

Kenworthy led the attack with three hits in four times up, including a three-bagger and a two-bagger. Dahlen made two two-base blows. Wertenberger pitched a fine game allowing only one walk.

BOYS AND GIRLS SWIMMING MEETS

Although the boys won the annual handicap swimming meets, the girls put up a splendid fight and almost won. The final score was a tie of 79 points, but the boys won the relay thereby winning the meet.

In the first half of the meet Anna Louise Engdahl was high point winner with 13 points to her credit. Dorothy Schumaker won this honor in the second half, making 11½ points.

A surprise feature of the first meet was staged by the "Olympic Divers," namely: Ewing Gehrke, Pete Graham, Horton Herman and Dan Dech.

already been found. The town was swarming with Indians and they were steadily coming in from all directions. He learned that soldiers were already on their way from Coeur d' Alene and two other forts. The men of the town were trying to quiet the Indians by acting in perfect sympathy. They explained to the warriors that they hadn't the slightest idea who had committed the crime. They promised to give up the criminal if he were found. The Indians listened with sullen scowls.

All day Frank was nervous. He jumped uneasily at the slightest sound. Each moment he expected to feel an arrow sink into his back accompanied by a triumphant grunt. His father asked him several times if he were ill. However, the day passed without disturbances. The following day was the same. The troops from Coeur d' Alene had arrived in town and they had gently forced the Indians to submissiveness. For two weeks the redskins re-

Frank's unparalleled experience was still in his own keeping. Months, then years passed, and the incident was forgotten by all but the one who held this unknown fact of Spokane's history in the making.

TENNIS

Although this is not the season for tennis, the team is practicing for the annual meet with Lewis and Clark in the fall.

The senior girls who will be lost to the team are: Elizabeth Parker, Ruth Walker, Ruth Berg and Maxine Thompson.

Practice meets with other teams are to be staged in the near future. Ruth Woodruff is captain of the team for next fall; the manager is Marlowe Dittebrandt.

All girls who are interested in tennis are urged to turn out this spring so that they may improve their game by next fall.

TO NORTH CENTRAL GRADUATES GREETINGS:

BETWEEN NOW AND SEPTEMBER WHAT?

Naturally you will want something to do. You will find jobs scarce and hard to secure—Unless you are specially trained.

During these months of waiting (if you are planning for a university training) you can prepare yourself to earn a living in an office. You can secure the business training that will make you independent—able to hold a good position in any city any time during the rest of your life—or if you go to the university you will be able to earn money in your spare time and to do your class work better, quicker and neater.

In either event you are the winner. DECISION is the key-word to business success.

Tiger freshman relay cut 1.5 seconds off the record set last year to make the distance in 1:37. The freshman relay does not count in scoring, however.

Bobby Gray was the only N. C. performer to break a record. He clipped 3.9 seconds off the backstroke record set last year by Jack Lambert to establish a new one of 1:16. Bill Shaw led in the scoring with 13 points.

The summary follows:

40-yard dash—Lambert, L. C., first; Shaw, N. C., second; Nolan, N. C., third; time, 0:20:8.

220-yard free style—Philip, L. C., first; Mott, L. C., second; Orcutt, N. C., third; time, 2:50.

LEWIS AND CLARK MEET

Indian tracksters were defeated 70 1-3 to 50 2-3 by Lewis and Clark in the annual track meet held last month on the North Central playfield. This is the first time the Indians have been the under-dog for seven years. Out of 18 meets North Central has won 12 and Lewis and Clark 6.

At one o'clock the Indian high jumpers arrived on the field to compete with the Tigers, but the clerk of the course decided that the pole vault was to be run off first. This delayed the meet for half an hour. Finally it was decided to get the high jump out of the way. In this event Atchison of Lewis and Atchison also won first in the pole vault with Mason of North Central and Dressel of the Tigers tying for second. In this meet Tommie went six inches higher than he ever has gone before. Grover also showed up well but failed to clear 10 feet 6 inches.

Swift won three events, the 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash and the broad jump with Dahlen coming in second in all these races.

Schmitt showed up well against his more experienced opponent by taking two seconds for a total of six points. Joslin of the Tigers broke the city record in the discus with a heave of 119 feet 6 inches. The former record was held by Hill Johnson of the Indians.

Hays won the 220-yard low hurdles and Sugrue came in third. This is the first year that Hays has hurdled but he is showing fast caliber already. Dieter, N. C. distance ace, won the half mile and mile runs.

Dahlen was high point man for North Central and Dieter came second. The half-mile relay was the closest race of the day, North

RIDDLE—WHAT IS IT?

It cooks in 3 to 5 minutes.
It chases dirt.
It hasn't scratched yet.
It floats, and is from contented cows.
It's like mother used to make, four out of five have it.
Even your best friend won't tell you.

"May I entertain you in any way, shape, or form?"

"Well, the last two sound interesting."

J. Melville S.: Say who's the fellow who wrote this book?

Roy R. B.: He's Dewey.

First It: Dewey, heck; he's all wet.

When the term mankind is used, it includes woman, for man embraces woman.

They say that this is a fast age, but there was more bustle in days of yore.
